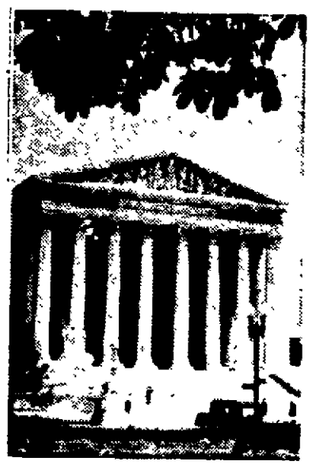
75th SESSION SUPERLATIVES: Here's What Country's Congressmen Went Through



TOUGHEST

While justices in the supreme court building were handing down decisions favorable to the New Deal, the New Deal was battling to reorganize the court. It was the hardest congressional fight since slavery days. The end, last summer after six months of oratory and sudden death of Majority Leader Robinson, was first New Deal rout.

GABBIEST

Senator Tom Connally of Texas led southern senators in a 29-day filibuster against the anti-lynching bill introduced last January. With legislative gears jammed, Connally and his men finally forced their colleagues to say "uncle," and the bill was laid aside. That was another in a long string of southern victories against such bills.

SADDEST

Pictures like this (Spanish boy greeting his father) and accounts of the wars in Spain and China have made congress wonder whether it was so smart to pass the neutrality bill a year ago. Now even its father, Senator Nye, wants to change it. The bill puts an embargo on arms shipments to belligerents when president decides war exists.

COSTLIEST

The 75th congress took its heaviest crack at the federal wallet when it passed the administration's three-billion-dollar spending-lending bill. It was the 1938 depression that prompted the generosity. Even if the money wouldn't cure depression causes, lawmakers hoped it would help tide over farmers and the unemployed, give business a fillip.

HOTTEST

A third of a million telegrams poured into Washington in two weeks before the final vote on the administration's government reorganization bill, making it the heaviest telegram-producer of the session. (Here is Representative O'Connor with some of the messages.) The bill passed the senate but lost out in the house by a narrow margin.

FOGGIEST

Ever since the farm bill passed in February, the department of agriculture has been busy explaining it to farmers. Those who have read the bill's 121 pages say it makes Uncle Sam the supervisor of agriculture. It tries to eliminate ups and downs in farm prices by regulating the flow of products to market—with the approval of farmers.

HEALTHIEST

Present-day congressmen may be remembered for their efforts to improve the national health. In the first session they authorized a $750,000 National Cancer Institute and an annual appropriation of $700,000 to fight cancer; in the last, they authorized $3,000,000 to be spent in the next year for a nation-wide educational campaign on syphilis.

HEAVIEST

Sailors will have more work and the world's armaments will be heavier by uncounted tons as the result of the billion-dollar naval expansion bill. It authorizes a 10-year construction program that would give the U. S. its biggest fleet. The three battleships provided may weigh 45,000 tons, heaviest ever built in the U. S.

ATTEMPT TO BOMB ASHLAND PLANT FAILS

Fuse Fizzles Out, Saves City; 12 Sticks of Dynamite, Six Quarts of Nitro Found.

(By Staff Correspondent)

ASHLAND—An unsuccessful attempt to blow up a warehouse in the industrial district, used to store food sent by plane to Republic Steel's struck plants in Warren and Niles last summer was revealed by authorities here today.

They announced the discovery of a bomb of sufficient power to have wrecked the entire surrounding industrial district beside the warehouse owned by Topping Brothers, in the northeast section of the city.

Fuse Burns 20 Feet.

Attached to the bomb was a 30-foot fuse, which had been ignited, and had burned 20 feet before it fizzled out

The bomb was fashioned from 12 sticks of dynamite and six quarts of nitro-glycerine, according to Police Chief Herman D. Fetzer.

Fetzer said the bomb was discovered Tuesday night, and that he notified the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Cleveland Wednesday. News of the discovery was withheld while the circumstances were investigated, he said. The FBI asked Police Chief Meade K. Bates of Mansfield to assist in the investigation, but Bates had little comment to make on the case, other than to say that if the bomb had exploded it would have wrecked the city's industrial section.

Police said they did not know definitely how long the bomb had been there, but believed it was placed only shortly before it was found, since it showed no signs of having been dampened by the heavy rains of the week-end.

Worker Makes Discovery.

The powerful bomb was discovered by Milo Thompson, who lives near the Topping warehouse. He told police he was working in his garden when he noticed the can, containing the nitro, and a paper box in which the dynamite had been placed.

Thompson first notified officials of the Topping firm, who called police.

SOLVE MYSTERY

Missing German Industrialist Found; 'Spy' Hunt Over.

WHEELING, W. Va.—(UP)—An agent for the federal bureau of investigation announced today that Dr. Carl Otto, German industrialist, had been located in New York and admitted ownership of baggage containing mysterious photographs and documents, including a diary written in German.

Almost simultaneously, Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI announced in Washington that "there is nothing to indicate any spy activities in the case and that the government men were withdrawing from the investigation.

According to J. T. Martin, federal agent in charge of this district, Dr. Otto told New York authorities that the bag was stolen from him in Pittsburgh but that he did not report the theft to police.

3,000 Jews Doomed By Nazi Purge

Writer Says Their Lot's To Be Similar to 51 Wanderers on Barge.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The graphic story of 51 "Wandering Jews" discovered by H. R. Knickerbocker on a barge in the Danube is concluded today in the second of two articles by the noted foreign correspondent.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

PRAGUE—No pogrom in modern history has taken place to compare with the driving of the Jews from Austria since the Nazis took power there. Today the Nazi authorities have decreed that Burgenland, bordering Hungary and Czechoslovakia, must be "Juden-frei," free of Jews, by the middle of June.

This means that around 3,000 Jews, deprived of their passports and of all their possessions, must somehow slip illegally over the border, or else be shoved over by the S S. (Nazi picked guards) into countries which will expel them by the same means. They have no legal or material basis of existence. They are doomed.

* * *

Aladar Reissner, leader of the 51 homeless Jews of Kittsee, resumed his story at the point where Czech and Hungarian police hemmed the exhausted refugees between them at the barbed wire, with the Czechs threatening to shoot if they did not crawl into Hungary and the Hungarians threatening to shoot if they did.

"But nobody shot," he said. "They finally saw it was a deadlock. 'So the Czechs on their horses, with the Hungarians following along on the other side of the wire, drove up straight down the frontier, about three miles, to the border of Austria, where Austria and Czechoslovakia and Hungary meet. They drove us into a little spot called no-man's land, and there we fell down and slept.

"That was on the twenty-first, and meant that after five days of wandering we were back where we started, but not for long. We must have walked over fifty miles. Our feet were bloody, and somewhere the eighty-year-old ones had been dropped. I heard that some people got them to a hospital in Bratislava after they collapsed.

From Shelby Correspondent To Lecturer, Author, Etc.-

That's Globe-Trotting Whiting Williams Who Still Looks at First Job as His 'Greatest Thrill.'

After the name of Whiting Williams there may, in all truthfulness, be written: "Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society; A. B., Oberlin; A. M., University of Berlin; lecturer, author, industrial consultant, lecturer on Human Relations in Business, at Harvard, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania universities;—

AND formerly Shelby correspondent for the Mansfield News.

Many years and a brilliant career lie between Whiting Williams, who lectured in Mansfield yesterday, and Charlie Williams of Shelby, who once "braced" the late W. S. Cappeller of the old Mansfield News for a job and go it.

Colorful Life.

In the intervening years Williams has made a colorful and fascinating tapestry of his life; a life filled with such contrasts that would bewilder the average man. He has gone from cabin de luxe to the boiler room of an ocean liner; he has been assistant to a college president and he has worked in the Pittsburgh steel mills; he's mined coal in West Virginia, tended looms in Georgia textile mills and tightened bolts on assembly lines in Detroit; he's walked shoulder to shoulder with the workers in the Ukraine and in the coal mines of Wales, and he's lectured before the world's great institutions of learning—

1ST STEP OVER

TVA Directors Reveal Data on Power 'Yard-stick.'

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority has completed its first step in establishing a "yard-stick" to measure power production costs.

Chairman Harcourt A. Morgan reported the findings to President Roosevelt in a letter made public last night.

The cost of three completed dams—Wilson, Norris and Wheeler—was placed at $94,125,671, of which 52 per cent was charged against electricity production, 28 per cent for navigation and 20 per cent for flood control.

The chairman said TVA engineers estimated that power revenues from the three completed projects would cover all costs of operation, return 3 per cent on the investment in power, return in 30 years the entire investment allocated to navigation and flood control.

Money-Burning Congress Leaves for Campaign Wars

CLEAR DECKS FOR SPENDING

New Dealers Launch Recovery Plan With 1st Outpour From $4,000,000,000 Fund.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The New Deal began a record-breaking $4,000,000,000 drive today to spend its way back to economic recovery.

Authorized as part of an unprecedented appropriations total of $12,300,000,000 voted by congress, the drive was well under way even before sine die adjournment last night. Funds voted by this session topped all previous New Deal records by nearly $2,000,000,000.

Administrative agencies cleared decks for action ready to spend the $3,753,000,000 specifically earmarked by congress for relief-recovery as well as huge additional funds for the same purpose carried in other supply measures.

Apportion Flood Fund.

Allocations were already under way. Secretary of War Harry Woodring apportioned more than $100,000,000 in flood control funds. Public works administration officials prepared to release funds to hundreds of municipalities coincident with signature by President Roosevelt of the recovery bill.

Republicans warned that the unequalled outpour of federal funds headed the country toward a possible 1939 fiscal year deficit approaching $8,000,000,000. A national debt approximating $45,000,000,-

Bodies of the two victims of the air tragedy were cremated Wednesday at Fresno. Wreckage of the plane and bodies of the nine persons aboard it were found near the peak of Buena Vista, near Wawona, Cal., last Sunday after a three-month search.

Garageman, Given Watch as Security, Finds It's His Own

Lloyd F. Campbell, Mansfield garageman, hasn't collected for pulling an automobile out of the mud a couple of nights ago, but he's not worrying so much about that, since the job helped him to recover a $35 watch which was stolen from his home 18 months ago.

Given the watch as security by a stranded motorist who didn't have the money for the bill, Campbell recognized it as the one burglars took from his home in November, 1936.

Campbell identified the timepiece by a mark he had put in the case, and learned that the motorist's wife had given it to him as a birthday gift.

Investigation by Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman revealed that the watch had been traded in at a Mansfield store and later purchased by the wife of the man who gave it to Campbell. The jeweler couldn't remember who had turned the watch in on the trade.

Campbell said today he hoped to arrange with the jeweler to prevent the innocent victim from losing on the recovery — but he still wants to collect his garage bill.

Lawmakers Go Home Amid Warnings That Special Session Might Be Called In Fall; $3,752,000,000 Spending Bill Approved In Final Hours.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The 75th congress, swept to office with the 1936 Roosevelt whirlwind, dispersed to the campaign wars today after having appropriated $21,000,000,000 during time out from bruising battles which split the New Deal-Democratic party wide open.

Congress adjourned last night sine die amid scattering warnings that national emergency might require a special session in the autumn. Railroad problems were high on the list of potentially urgent recess problems.

Final business of congress was to appropriate $3,752,000,000 to spend against depression and to vote a $290,000,000 deficiency bill, part of which will start the nation's emergency naval construction.

Since Jan. 3, when this final session convened, congress has appriated approximately $12,000,000,000—a peace time record—although President Roosevelt's last estimate of probable revenue in the coming fiscal year was only $6,000,000,000. The prospect is for a tremendous treasury deficit in the next 12 months.

Generous to Farmers.

This congress, born in a flood tide of returning recovery, died in a depression ebb. It was generous to farmers to the last. The recovery appropriation included $212,000,000 for subsidies to cotton, corn, rice, wheat and tobacco farmers, voted over Mr. Roosevelt's protest against unbudgeted expenditures. In its final day congress bounced back at the White House a veto message in which Mr. Roosevelt sought to prevent extension of low interest privileges to farm borrowers at a cost of $48,000,000 annually.

But congress snapped an abrupt "no" to the final demand of labor, uttered by Chairman John L. Lewis of the Committee for Industrial Organization. Lewis demanded enactment of new labor standards legislation involving a government "black list" of concerns violating such standards of disobeying National Labor Relations board orders. Democratic house leaders refused to bring the Lewis bill to a vote.

The senate quit last night at 8:22, cutting off filibuster dispute over new appropriations for the lobby investigation. The house followed at 9:10 p. m. (EST).

The Democratic phalanx which marched shoulder-to-shoulder into Washington in January 1937 dispersed today in cliques and factions. The scant Republican rearguard, surviving of the hosts which controlled congress through post-war to mid-depression years, scattered denouncing the record of this congress but gaily predicting big things from the 1938 elections.

Sees G. O. P. Gain.

Chairman Joseph W. Martin, Mass., of the Republican congressional campaign committee promised that Republicans would pick up a minimum of 76 seats in November. Rep. Hamilton Fish (R., N. Y.) bellowed protest that adjournment ended "a session remarkable for the irresponsibility of its squandering of the people's money which has not been approached by any other congress."

There were a few unavailing objections to leaving without voting emergency loan and other aid for distressed railroads. But President Roosevelt in letters to Garner and Speaker William B. Bankhead praised the departing congress for its "constructive legislation."

Flying proudly from the New Deal halyards today are the bright signals of victory on wages and hours legislation. That was the outstanding Roosevelt legislative triumph of the 75th session.

Farm aid, national defense and relief accounted for almost half the $21,656,174,000 which appropriations committee accountants reported the 75th congress had voted to spend.

Congress Passes Dozen Bills Directly Affecting Ohioans

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Ohio members wrote success over a program of vital importance to their state during the session of congress just ended

A session-long drive in co-operation with other delegations resulted in passage of a dozen or so pieces of legislation affecting the Buckeye state directly.

They embraced flood control, stream pollution abatement, relief and public works.

The flood control bill, which survived an eleventh-hour filibuster in the senate, authorized a half-billion dollar program in the Ohio river basin and recommended appropriation of $125,000,000 to get it under way.

The bill permits the government to take over lands for reservoirs and dams without consent of the states and relieves local governments of all expense except for purely local projects such as flood walls and levees.

Congress also included in the relief-public works bill a provision permitting federal spending for direct relief, a procedure urged by officials of larger Ohio cities confronted with critical unemployment problems.

Other measures pushed to final passage with the support of Ohioans provide:

Federal control of the sale and transportation of natural gas in interstate commerce, a step proponents said would tend to lower rates of gas piped from one state to another;

Establishment of a new division in the public health service to co-operate with states and industries in stream pollution control;

Appropriation of money for continuance of work on flood control projects authorized last year; and

Payment of $4,500,000 by the federal government to property owners in the Muskingum conservancy district for money spent in acquiring property rights.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AT KATHERINE'S question, "Now what's your man-size job?" I looked at her animated face her sparkling eyes and her lithe figure, with efficiency written in every line of it, and told myself again that if anybody could accomplish the difficult task Dicky had set, it would be the capable woman before me.

"Can you make an appointment for Hank with some specialist in New York for some time tomorrow forenoon?" I asked, and added the corollary, "The appointment must be over by noon."

She gave me one long, searching look.

"That's the only time Dicky can take him?" she queried as if she already knew the answer.

"That's what he just told me," I answered.

"It's a big order," she said at last, "but I imagine we'll muddle through somehow. It's going to take a lot of foot work, or rather lip and ear work. I shall have to sit glued to a telephone the rest of the evening."

"How can I help?" I asked.

"Ah! there's where I can give you a break," she smiled. "You can help me most by taking Faith off my hands for the rest of her day, very brief now. She'll go to sleep very shortly, but she ought to have a tepid sponge and all the rest of the routine."

"How is Hank going to take this, I wonder," she asked worriedly, even as I had, and I told her forthwith of Dicky's promise.

"I'd like to be around when he springs it," she said after a laugh. "But unless I have fool's luck, I won't be able to leave the telephone for hours to come. They're never in at this time, those big fellows. I'll have to track each one down to his lair, and use every bit of pull I ever had to turn this trick. But do listen in, and tell me afterward what Dicky pulls. It ought to be something rare."

Needs Someone Else.

"I'll do my best," I assured her, and then for a long second she was silent.

"Will you forgive me," she said at last, "if I tell you that I think Hank ought to have somebody along with him besides Dicky?"

"Why?" I asked.

"Because," she replied steadily, "it is very apparent that Dicky's time is not his own."

I started, for she had used Dicky's very words, and she shot a speculative look at me.

"And that being the case," she went on steadily, "something might happen so that he would have to leave the boy while he was at the specialist's office, or even have to send him in alone. That wouldn't matter in a lot of cases, but Hank is quite an unpredictable person. I shouldn't like to have him left alone."

"What do you suggest?" I asked miserably, for I could not bear the picture she had unwittingly painted.

"I think Bill is the answer," she replied. "But—can we keep Dicky from guessing why we want him to go along with Hank?"

CHAPTER XXXI.

"Mr. Clay?"

"Yes, Annie." Clay was pushing his chair away from the luncheon table when Mrs. Kime, Wardlaw's housekeeper, spoke to him. Her lean face was filled with worried lines. "What's the matter?" the young man wanted to know.

"Don't you think your uncle's actin' queer . . . . different, I mean? It's all of two weeks that he's been lyin' up there. At first, he acted like a dog that had run around a tree until he got his chain all wound up. You know, can't bite but barks a lot. I was half afraid to go near him. And I know he used to get after you and worry about the mill and what you likely wasn't doin'. He ain't like that any more, is he?"

"No, he isn't. I've wondered about that. He doesn't seem to care particularly, just listens to what I tell him."

"It ain't like him to be so quiet. Jeremy was sayin' only today if he'd known the boss could have kept that quiet, he'd have broken a leg for him long ago."

"I was talking to the doctor just this morning," Clay observed thoughtfully. "He says Uncle is coming along in good order. His leg is doing as well as can be expected and his heart is in fine shape. He thinks the rest will do him a lot of good."

"Maybe he's only restin', but it does seem sort of unnatural.

"I'm afraid perhaps I have been neglecting him more than I should," Clay remarked with some compunction. "I expect he's lonely, in a way. But I have been pretty busy."

"Yes, and you'd better keep pretty busy before he gets out and around. Had you thought of that?"

"I certainly have. It's going to be rather complicated. I hate to think ot it. Well . . . ." He paused to light a cigaret. "It's a good thing Uncle doesn't have gossiping friends dropping in. Annie, has anyone been here at all?"

"Not a soul, Mr. Clay. Ain't that awful to think of? Live in one town practically all your life and then nobody comes to see you when you're sick. I most forgot to tell you. The man from the greenhouse out at the cemetery delivered a bunch of zinnias, just said he was asked to deliver 'em. No name. I took 'em up to Mr. Wardlaw. He only grunted and went on readin'. I think I could guess who it was."

"A reminder from the cemetery, you mean?" Clay asked innocently.

"No I think it was from someone who's sorry for your uncle, in spite of some things he's done."

"Well, we'll have to try to figure out some way to make things merry and bright for Uncle Romulus. I only hope he's building up some reserve calm. He's likely to need it one of these days."

* * *

That little worry lurked in the back of Clay's mind all the afternoon. He had been so supremely happy these past days that t made him feel a trifle ashamed for his neglect of Romulus. And yet, there was no particular bond between them, save the one that existed on paper. There couldn't be much affection, even though Clay reminded himself that, had it not been for his uncle, he never would have found Larry. But, on the other hand, Romulus had done everything he could to make this new happiness impossible. When he discovered how he had been balked, there was almost certain to be an upheaval that would make their former disagreements seem very trivial. Clay had to figure on that crisis, too.

Clayton ate dinner in the Layne home that evening.

"I'm getting worried abou you, dear," Larry said to him.

"And why?"

"You look tired. And I don't wonder . . . . carrying all that load at the plant. And finding time to see me a little while every evening. I know well enough that you go back to the office oftener than you go home and to bed. It isn't right."

"Nonsense. I'm feeling fine. The job's a cinch. I don't know why I ever had Uncle under my feet. If I nould only have more time with you, everything would be perfect."

Larry left her chair and drew her favorite stool close to Clay. Resting her arm on his knee, she looked seriously up into his face.

"Clay, I've been thinking about you. You're being sweet to me, but it isn't fair. I've decided that you mustn't give me so much of your time. You really mustn't."

"Getting tired of me?"

"Please, Clay. It's almost all that I live for . . . your coming again. But I want you to have more rest until this hard work is over. I'll understand. Honestly, I will."

"That's mighty sweet of you, dear." He patted her hand. "But I simply couldn't carry on at all, if it wasn't for my glimpses of you. It's a little complicated of course."

"And you're afraid it's going to be more complicated, aren't you? I wish I didn't have to be a worry to you. What do you suppose Mr. Wardlaw is going to do or say, when he finds out about . . . . me?"

"It won't make any difference," Clay assured her. Then he told her that his conscience was troubling him a bit about his uncle. "I ought to give him more of my time, I suppose. However, I don't feel so sure he wants it. It's sort of getting me."

"Then try to be with him more, Clay. After all, we owe him so much."

"We'll muddle along some way, darling."

Throughout the meal, Clay seemed singularly preoccupied, although instantly attentive when spoken to. Larry knew that he was troubled over the situation he was facing, but was quite unprepared for the sudden suggestion he offered at the end of the meal.

"Let's have a family consultation while we're all here . . . . you're in on this, Mums. Muriel too. I've got an idea," He stared reflectively at Larry. "Let's get married right away, Larry. It would solve a lot of things for us."

STUDIES 18 BIDS SUBMITTED ON 3 STREET JOBS

City Board Checks Offers of 2 Mansfield Firms; Herring Low on 8 Out of 9.

The city board of control today was studying 18 bids submitted by two Mansfield firms for the paving of three city streets. Bids for concrete, brick and asphalt paving were received for each street.

The proposals were opened yesterday afternoon by the board of contral which consists of Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert.

Hunter said that the bids will be given further study as the type of pavement to be laid before the contract for the work will be awarded.

The George B. Herring and Son company had eight low bids out of nine proposals submitted on the various types of improvements on the three streets. The other bidder, the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company was low on one bid.

Includes 3 Streets.

The construction work includes the paving of Ausdale avenue from West Park boulevard to Linden road, Bartley avenue from Glessnes avenue to Parkview street, and Willis avenue from First to Arch street.

On the Ausdale avenue improvement, Herrings entered a low base bid of $11,927 for an 8-inch concrete pavement, which was $84 under the bid of $12,011 submitted by the Mansfield Asphalt company.

The asphalt company however, with a bid of $12,727.60 for a 2½-inch surface was $130 lower than Herring. On the brick surface Herring bid $15,101 and the Mansfield Asphalt $15,281.80. All proposals except those on the brick paving were below the city engineer's estimate of $14,027.50.

Other bids submitted included:

Bartley avenue—concrete, Herrin $6,735, Mansfield Asphalt $7,372.50; asphalt, Herring $7,663, Mansfield Asphalt $7,949; brick, Herring $8,765, Mansfield Asphalt $9,276.50. City engineer's estimate $8,414.

Willis avenue—concrete, Herring $3,549, Mansfield Asphalt, $3,886; asphalt, Herring $4,469, Mansfield Asphalt $4,541; brick, Herring $5,063, Mansfield Asphalt $5,270. City engineer's estimate $4,151.75.

HOME GROWN RASPBERRIES TOP WEEK-END FOOD MARKET NEWS

There is little change either in price or variety at the fruit and vegetable markets this week-end, except that several home grown fruits are expected. Home grown red raspberries will be offered—but at a high price, merchants say.

Black raspberries from Richland county growers, slightly lower in price, are on the market now. Strawberries, which will have a short season this year because of the unseasonable cold late in the spring, will be available all through next week, it is predicted.

Red currants, old favorites for jelly, may be seen here and there on the markets. Red pie cherries are scarce and expensive. Melons are coming in greater quantities and are of good quality, especially the watermelons.

Georgia peaches are an attractive feature these days, suggesting chilled peaches and cream or fresh peach cobbler. A few apricots are seen, and transparent apples appear in several markets.

Celery from the Hartville marshes near Canton is the first of the home grown variety this season, and on Monday of next week Ashland celery will arrive at Mansfield markets.

Among the seasonal green vegetables, asparagus is a favorite, with green beans a close second. The variety of vegetables is almost unlimited.

JACOBS CERTAIN TO BREAK EVEN ON TITLE BOUT NEXT WEEK.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mike Jacobs doesn't have to sell another ticket to be in the clear on Schmeling and Louis. . . . That doesn't mean he has a sell-out yet, but the fight isn't going to lay an egg. . . . Out-of-town customers had better make sure of that hotel reservation. . . . You'd be surprised at the lack of Schmeling money with so many of the top flight experts out on the limb for the German. . . . One Yorkville German who won $1,400 on Schmeling in 1936 is betting on Louis this time.

* * *

How about Scotty Reston, who handles sports in London for the A.P.! . . . All he did was lick two American Walker Cup players on the same day. . . . He took Johnny Fischer, by one hole, drank a beer and polished off Marvin Ward, 3 and 2. . . . That cove is a bit of orl right, aren't he?

* * *

At Speculator the other night Max Schmeling sat down after dinner and autographed 165 photos which will be included in a souvenir book Moe Annenberg, publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, will give away at a party after the fight. Reliable reports from up that way say a sizable percentage of the citizens in Yorkville (New York's German section) are pulling for Louis. . . . They are piqued with Schmeling.

* * *

Tommy Farr may defend his British empire title against Maurice Strickland of New Zealand in Toronto in August. . . . Farr also expects to see just how good the highly touted Jimmy Adamick is.

* * *

Durham, N. C., where Johnny Vander Meer, the no-hit specialist, once struck out 295 batters in one season, celebrated the youngster's performance the other night almost as much as the Rhineland fans.

* * *

BY THE TIME the Red Sox got through paying their minor league obligations, player investments and all, the club dropped $160,000 last season. . . . But Owner Tom Yawkey wears the same old grin. . . . Bitterest feud in the majors right now is going on between Joe McCarthy and Jimmy Dykes. . . . Last winter Dykes popped off: "When the Yanks sold him (Tony Lazzeri) they sold their brains." . . . And in a recent series after the Sox had trimmed the world champs three straight, McCarthy bawled: "For blankety, blank sakes, are you going to let that bunch of semi-pros take you?"

Aces Smeared By Paints, 9-3

The Mansfield Aces girls' softball team bowed to the feminine Harris Paints of Ashland, 9 to 3, at Ashland yesterday. The Ashland team tallied three times in the first inning to take a lead it never relinquished. Biddinger led the attack against Donna Schuster, who gave up 12 bingles, with a home run and two singles. Tipul got two hits for the losers.

Mansfield Gunman Wins Mallory Cup

Hollis F. Pace Breaks 49 Targets Out of 50 in Shoot at Cedar Point.

AFTER a number of disappointing defeats, Hollis F. Pace, one of Mansfield's leading trapshooters, came into his own yesterday.

Shooting in the Okoboji Indians' trapshoot at Cedar Point, Pace of 135 Benton street won the Mallory cup, one of the major awards in the annual gunfest.

Breaks 49 Targets.

Pace broke 49 out of a possible 50 targets at 20 yards to annex the major prize in the Point range.

The Mansfield expert tied for the Mallory cup championship last year by smashing 47 targets, but lost in the shoot-off to Dan Biddinger of Woodville.

Dr. M. E. Hagerty of St. Louis and Phil Gattron of Fremont tied for second place with 48 out of 50 in the event which attracted 50 marksmen from all over the country.

Three years ago Pace tied for the Grand American championship, the nation's major rifle event, at Vandalia, and lost in the shoot-off. Pace has been one of Mansfield's most consistent performers in national competition.

Shoot In Handicap.

Pace also shot in a special handicap at Cedar Point yesterday, but falied to finish among the leaders. Other Mansfield participants in the handicap were Harold Goetz and A. E. Courtney.

Ashland Plans Kennel Show

Stages One-Day Affair at Coliseum June 26.

ASHLAND — Fifth annual all-breed dog show of the Ashland Kennel club, leading one-day show in Ohio and one of the top flight Midwestern shows, will be held at the Fairground coliseum Sunday, June 26. An entry list of 500 is expected.

Entries for the show will close Sunday, June 19. An American Kennel Club rule prohibits acceptance of entries after that date.

Started on a small scale, the Ashland show has grown steadily until it is recognized as one of the country's major shows. For the past three years, it has ranked in the upper third of all dog shows in the nation.

For the first time in three years, dogs will be benched. For the first time, a professional superintendent will handle details of the show.

Entries may still be made. They may be sent to Mrs. R. L. Forbes, secretary, Ohio street, Ashland, O.

Birdie, Eagle Feathers Fly as Guldahl Chalks Up Third Straight Western Victory

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Ralph Guldahl did it again. And he bears the title of the greatest man in golf today after another of his blistering stretch finishes in the Western Open championship yesterday.

The burly Texan drew to two pair—successive U. S. Open and Western victories—and came up with his third straight Western conquest for a full house. Birdie and eagle feathers fairly flew along Ralph's final 18-hole trail as he boomed in with a six-under-par 65 for a four-round total of 279.

Sam Snead was the last to wilt. He rounded the three-quarter flag in a 214 tie with Guldahl but came in with 286, two over par, for second money.

Ray Mangrum of Dayton, who eased unnoticed to a 144 level with the round-shouldered king at the 36-hole mark, faded with a pair of 76's into a three-way tie for tenth with Horton Smith and Harry Cooper.

Guldahl's share of the $3,000 stake was $750. Showing the strain of his two major victories in a week, Ralph left today for Chicago and his home club at Madison, N. J.

Second place was worth $450 to Snead. Tony Penna, who buzzed around with the second-best 18-hole count, 67, received $300 on his 289.

Metal Vaults Retain News-Journal Lead

Trim Newspapermen, 4 to 1, to Stay Point Ahead of Threatening Bissman Team at Possum Run.

THE Mansfield Metal Vaults retained their slight advantage in the News-Journal Class B golf league at Possum Run yesterday.

Obtaining four of the five points at stake in their match with the News-Journal entry, the Vaults remained in the league lead by a one point margin.

The Bissman company sluggers remained the Vaults' chief rivals at this stage of the season by walloping Al's Kicks, 4 to 1. The newspapermen's defeat by the leaders knocked them out of a tie for second place into the next lower notch.

None of the occupants of the other positions were changed yesterday as the Elks trimmed Ohio Public Service, 3 to 2, and Auxter Motors outpointed Central Fruit, 2 to 1, with two points of the match remaining in doubt because of a postponement.

Scoring as a whole was somewhat higher than usual yesterday, with Vild of the Motors, Frome of the Elks and Stirtzinger of the Bissmans tying for low score with 38's. They were the only swingers to break 40.

Strome, low with a 40; Dillon and Davis chalked up the wins for the Vaults yesterday over the News-Journals, whose only point was registered by Rev. Grover Swoyer, who shot a 42 to best Rabal. Byrnes also had a 42 for the newspapermen, but was beaten.

Match victories by Stirtzinger, Schadek and Brandt enabled the Bissman company to stay right behind the Vaults. Schemine took a 45 as Eichin won to secure Al's Kicks' lone marker.

Wins Extra Hole.

An extra hole victory by Zeides saved the O. P. S. from a worse defeat. Zeides took the measure of Barrett. Frantz accounted for the other O. P. S. point. Foltz and Frome earned the Elks' match points.

Vild and McCullough added the points that gave the Motors the edge over the Fruits. Swigart scored for the losers.

Henrich Joins Legion Team

Yank Star's Brother to Be on First Sunday.

Manager Dewey Durant announced today that he has signed Ed Henrich, brother of Tom, New York Yankee outfielder, for his American Legion club.

Henrich, who formerly played with the Westinghouse club, is a first baseman, and will replace Charley Baker of Bucyrus. Baker's inability to find his hitting stride this year forced Durant to make the change.

Henrich will be on first Sunday when the Legionnaires go to Newark to meet the Central Ohio league leaders.

Feller's Return to Form Revives Tribe Flag Hopes

Youthful Star Hurls Tight Game to Beat Nats as Hemsley Dons Mask.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Cleveland penant hopes quickened again today after Blazing Bob Feller, youthful right-hander, prover that he was back in top form.

Feller, exceedingly unimpressive in his last three starts, turned in a neat eight-hit performance yesterday as the Indians defeated Washington by a 4 to 1 count. The victory enabled the Tribe to retain its slim one-half game lead over the New York Yankees.

Seldom In Trouble.

With Rollie Hemsley in the lineup for the first time since he received a broken finger, Feller responded to his shrewd handling and seldom was in trouble.

Bothered by wildness in the games he pitched during Cleveland's recent eastern invasion, Feller demonstrated excellent control against the Senators. He walked only four batsmen and set seven Washington players down on strikes.

Washington's only run off the Iowa schoolboy came in the sixth inning when Julius Solters and Earl Averill let Rick Ferrell's high fly drop between them to allow Jimmy Wasdell to score from third.

Cleveland hammered Joe Krakaukas and Harry Kelley for a total of 11 hits. Every man in the lineup secured at least one safety.

The Indians were off in front when they scored once in the third inning and then clinched the decision in the fourth when Rookie Ken Keltner slammed out his 11th home run of the season to score Hal Trosky ahead of him. The final counter came in the eighth.

Feller's Seventh.

The victory was Feller's seventh of the season as against two defeats.

Cleveland was to open a series with Philadelphia here today. Johnny Allen was to hurl for the Tribe, with Buck Ross opposing him.

Plays Moose In First Tilt

Hi-Speed Team to Precede Merchants Sunday.

Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds and the Mansfield Merchants will furnish the baseball entertainment for fans Sunday when the clubs tackle the touted Canton Moose club in a doubleheader at League park.

The Hi-Speeds, seeking their sixth win of the season, will face the invaders in the opener at 1:30 p. m., and Russ Remy's Merchants will battle them in the night cap.

Petey Beer, Hi-Speeds' right-hander, will toe the mound Sunday in quest of his sixth victory of the year, Herrick said today. The tilt will be the first for the Hi-Speeds in two weeks. The game at League park last Sunday was called off because of rain.

Remy has not announced who will handle the pitching assignment for the Merchants.

JOHNSVILLE SEEKS 9TH

Undefeated in eight straight games, Johnsville's baseball team will meet the Shelby Settlement club at the Pines at 2:30 p. m. Shelby. Scott will hurl for Johnsville.

Cincinnati Fans to Get Bulk Of Ducats For All-Star Game

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — Harry Murdough, an obscure "behind the scenes" member of the Cincinnati Reds' official family, today was confronted with a mathematical problem that defied solution.

Murdough, manager of the Reds' ticket department, was given the unenviable task of handling the sale of tickets to the major league all-star game here July 6 and tomorrow he faces the wrath of baseball fans from coast to coast because he couldn't solve the problem of making 24,000 reserved and box seats take care of requests for the staggering total of 140,000 seats.

Murdough and a staff of six assistants who have devoted a full month to the all-star game ticket situation, will mail notices to lucky fans tomorrow that their applications have been approved and tickets for the "dream game" are ready to be sent out. For every fan who receives tickets, however, there will be six other disappointed applicants.

Requests for the all-star tickets were received from 85,000 different persons. The applications came from every state in the union and Canada. The individual requests varied from the humble fan who wanted one seat to organizations, clubs and business firms that requested up to 600 tickets.

The sale was conducted primarily on a "first come-first served" basis. However, Cincinnati fans were given the preference over out-of-town applicants.

"Undoubtedly we will be criticized for this practice," Murdough said, "but I think that it is the only fair thing to do. The scene of the all-star game is changed annually to permit fans in various sections to see it and when we are host to the contest I believe it just that we take care of the dyed-in-wool fans who support us at the gate by their regular attendance."

STOCK MARKET LAGS DESPITE ADJOURNMENT

Brokers Disappointed When Price Fail to Advance After Congress Disbands.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market resumed its selective slow-motion rise today, with leaders getting up fractions to a point or so.

Those who had expected the market to celebrate the adjournment of congress with a fast forward tilt apparently were disappointed, although it was noted that continuance of the inactivity still was a restraining influence on selling forces.

Commodities exhibited higher trends. Bonds were mixed. Foreign securities markets were moderately improved. Demand for gold in London was in evidence, although inflationary talk in Wall Street seemed to have died down considerably. Business news, generally, was without stimulating qualities.

Among favorable overnight items, marketwise, were the figures of the federal reserve banks disclosing that, during the week ended Wednesday, commercial, industrial and agricultural loans rose $3,000,000, the first advance in many weeks.

Clouding the recovery picture was the week-end review of Dun & Bradstreet which estimated retail distribution for the country as a whole, while 1 to 3 per cent above the week before, was 13 to 22 per cent under the corresponding period a year ago.

82 Youngsters Strut In Annual Marty Hogan Show

A well filled theater last night greeted the 16th annual revue of the Marty Hogan Studio of Dance which was presented at the Madison theater under the auspices of the Spanish War Veterans.

Fred Judd's orchestra was seated on the stage and gave the musical background for the numbers. The costumes were attractive and the performance moved smoothly. There were 82 youngsters in the show, all of whom were on the stage for the finale.

Among the acts that were given a "big hand" were Jay Baughman in a tap routine, and Tommy McNew, jr., who sang "Says My Heart," and followed it with a tap. An impersonation of Bill Robinson won a round of applause for Janice Holmes, and Mary Ellen Seeburger went over well with her song and dance, "Blue Prelude."

Eight-year-old Roseann Kenney, singing "Thanks for the Memory" was a popular number. Mary Lou Kubic doing a blackface song and dance, "Jammin'," and Mary Van Arnheim in a specially arranged Spanish tap with appropriate costume, won audience approval.

Jack Gates, Columbus, an instructor on the Hogan staff, was master of ceremonies, and Mrs. Clara Hogan, director of the school, was in charge of the show.

LOOK FORWARD

—to the time when you can work less, eat more and do the things you haven't had time to do in the past. You can accomplish these points by increasing the consumption of bread with each meal. That old saying "Bread is the Staff of Life" holds good today as when it was said ages ago. Besides it is the cheapest food on the market. Inference—use HANLEY made FLOURS.

STATE ADDS 7TH RICHLAND ROAD

Transfer of Shelby-Johnsville Route Puts Maintenance Up to Highway Department.

The Shelby-Johnsville road, totaling 16.45 miles in Richland and Morrow counties, had been added to the state highway system today, making 65 miles of road in the county that the state has acquired in the past year.

The county started action more than a year ago to have the Shelby-Johnsville route transferred to the state system, but disputes over rights-of-way have held up the transfer, according to County Engineer Howard C. Sword.

Connecting state route 61 near Vernon Junction with U. S. route 42 in Morrow county, the road is of macadam, concrete, gravel and earth construction. About 9.5 miles of it are in Richland county.

The transfer leaves only two of nine roads, which were proposed for annexation to the system last year, still under county maintenance. Action is pending on the Shelby-Bucyrus and the Lexington-Galion roads, totaling about six miles in the western part of the county, Sword said.

VACATIONISTS GET WARNING

Health Commissioner Points to Danger of Typhoid for Those Not Immunized.

With the summer vacation season at hand, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner today warned vacationists of the dangers of typhoid fever at vacation spots, especially to persons who have not been immunized against the disease.

Summer vacations are very frequently planned at remote spots where there are few, if any safeguards against typhoid fever, Dr. Rehder said.

He urged that summer vacations be arranged for places where there is an adequate supply of safe milk and water.

"Vacationists should also be careful about flies when food is either cooked or eaten, as they are one of the most common carriers of the disease," Dr. Rehder said.

"On camping trips, water should be boiled before using or a chemical mixed with the water to purify it if the supply comes from a doubtful source, but proper proportions of the chemical should be learned before attempting this method,' he added.

Dr. Rehder also warned against the dangers of contracting typhoid fever from raw foods, and advised proper cooking before they are eaten.

He declared that the best safeguard against contracting vacation typhoid is immunization.

WOOL RESISTS SALT WATER

MELBOURNE— (LP) —The famous clipper ship Lightning, loaded with wool, was burned to the water's edge in Corio Bay in 1869. Now, 69 years after the wreck, some of the wool has been recovered. And, in spite of its long immersion, it hasn't even lost its curl.

JURY TO HEAR NEW WILL CASE

Suit Filed by Grandchildren of Plymouth Manufacturer Up for Trial Monday.

The Richland county petit jury will be called into session Monday to decide the second contested will case in a week, as grandchildren of the late Charles E. Heath of Plymouth bring his will before the court.

With an estate estimated at $23,000 involved in the case, the jury will be asked to determine whether the will said to be that of Mr. Heath is genuine.

Mr. Heath, who was an executive of the Fate-Root-Heath company at Plymouth, died in May, 1937, leaving his entire estate to his son, Earl W. Heath, of Plymouth, defendant in the suit. The will was drawn up about a month before Mr Heath's death, and filed last June 17.

Seeking to share in the estate are Everett Heath Krueger and Margot Anne Krueger, of Shaker Heights, both minors, who filed the action through their father, Everett H Krueger.

The petit jury two days ago upheld the will of Willis Egner, Bloominggrove township farmer who died last September.

WHITING LOOKS BACK ON SHELBY

Labor Expert Recalls 'Greatest Thrill,' Landing First Job as Correspondent.

But in all those years he's never had a greater thrill than that day in the office of the old Shelby Times when Publisher Cappeller, visiting the little neighboring weekly plant, answered with a twinkle in his eye, "Son, if you think you can handle the job and get the Shelby news over to us on time—for once-a-week publication—the job is yours."

That was in the Gay Nineties and the young blades of Shelby found it interesting to have a girl in Shelby and another in Mansfield.

"We always made the trip by bicycle, and on hot nights we literally sprinkled the Mansfield-Shelby road with the sweat of our brows. Our romantic activities were considerably reduced, however, as communication between the two towns became easier. One girl was sure to find out about the other."

Williams' father was B. J. Williams, a Shelby banker.

His first adventure came through his newsppaer connections, slight as they were. After graduating from Oberlin college in 1899, he had a yen for world vagabonding. The Shelby paper obtained a transporation pass for him to the Atlantic coast, and from there he started on an 18,000-mile trip around the world and over the map of Europe.

Before leaving home the late John Sherman of Mansfield gave him a letter of introduction to Andrew D. White, then ambassador to Germany, which opened doors all over Germany for him. The entire adventure cost him only $250 beyond what he earned as he worked his way.

Williams has a passion for seeing both sides of a question, which largely accounts for his work among the craft workers of the world. When he wanted to know what human equation made labor strikes, he left his office as vice president of a steel company and joined a strike, and not many years later he took a job as a strike-breaker in the railway shop workers nation-wide strike in 1922. But he learned what both groups were thinking.

Yesterday afternoon, when he had several hours of leasure between his Kiwanis speech and his appearance at Senior High school auditorium, he was asked how he would spend the afternoon.

"I'm going to Shelby," he said smilingly, "I'm going over to see old friends and look up some of the old girls—but believe me I'm not going to bicycle over."

Amusements

Crystal Beach Features Busse.

Henry Busse and his widely-known orchestra comes to the Crystal Beach ballroom, at Vermilion, Sunday evening, direct from an all-time record engagement of two years in Chicago's famous dance spot, Chez Paree. Busse has been a consistent feature of the NBC networks, appearing every Sunday night on a national program. Busse came into prominence when he played the trumpet solos with Paul Whiteman's band for 10 years.

Joe Hart at Buckeye Lake.

Entertainment for dancers and listeners alike is prominently featured in the program of "Little Joe" Hart, currently playing an engagement in Buckeye Lake's Crystal ballroom. Hart, a featured entertainer for eight years with Ace Brigode and now head of his own band, is noted for his impersonations of screen and radio stars. It was he who introduced the inebriated version of "Pink Elephants," which he was called upon to do for years afterward. Hart will be followed at the Buckeye Crystal dance room by Hod Williams and his orchestra.

CLEAR DECKS FOR SPENDING

New Dealers Launch Recovery Plan With 1st Outpour From $4,000,000,000 Fund.

000 was forecast by the end of the new fiscal year.

The bulk of the huge war chest was budgeted for the depression fight. But virtually unpredecented peace time spending for national defense purposes swelled the total.

Previous record spending for a New Deal congress was set in 1936 when payment of the soldiers' bonus lifted appropriations for the 1937 fiscal year to $10,560,000,000.

Last year congress made available for the current 1938 fiscal year $9,356,174,000 bringing the total for the 75th congress to $21,500,000,000. In the year before the World war, congress appropriated only $1,625,000,000, one-eight of the current amount.

The total is made up of $5,104,985,000 in direct appropriations for regular departmental functions, $2,915,405,000 of direct appropriations in the relief-recovery bill, an estimated $882,473,000 in re-appropriations, $2,718,772,000 in permanent appropriations and about $700,000,000 in deficiency and special appropriations.

THEATER

WHEN Helen Hayes' company played "Victoria Regina" in Hollywood recently there was a near panic. The Shriners convention was being held in the city to add to the confusion and the minor members of the troupe were so anxious to see the movie stars arrive that they stayed out in front too long and were late getting into their costumes and held the curtain. The police called for reinforcements when Sonja Henie and the Earl of Warwick arrived, but the entire cordon of police failed to hold the crowd when Tyrone Power arrived with Janet Gaynor. After the performance Norma Shearer gave a party for Helen Hayes at the Trocadero. It was just as great an event in Hollywood as the Hayes shows are in any other city.

Ohio Show Changes.

Published originally in serial form in Good Housekeeping and later as a novel, Erich Remarque's novel of post-war Germany, "Three Comrades" now is introduced as a motion picture. It was produced by M-G-M and directed by Frank Borzage, who 11 years ago gave the screen one of its greatest and tenderest love stories, "Seventh Heaven." "Three Comrades" is another love story, the love of three war buddies for each other and their love for one girl. It has tenderness, fierce loyalties and a searing tragedy. The romantic element has been heightened for screen purposes and to soften the bitter realities of Remarque's novel. Robert Taylor, Robert Young and Franchot Tone are the three modern Musketeers who stand "all for one and one for all" until a tragic figure of a girl comes along, not to separate them but to bind them closer together. Margaret Sullavan, one of the aristocrats of the screen, both personally and artistically, is the girl. "Three Comrades" opens tomorrow at the Ohio.

* * *

Old Theme, New Thrills.

After a week of special events and stage shows the Madison settles down for a breathing spell before the opening of the controversial film "Birth of A Baby" on Sunday. Today and tomorrow the theater shows "Hunted Men," an old theme dressed up in new thrills. Lloyd Nolan, after killing a man in cold blood worms his way into a respectable, conservative home in a quiet residential district and remains there, secure from police. His regeneration comes a bit late but it comes through the hero-worship of the small boy of the family who is a Junior G-Man, and the girlish adoration of the daughter of the house. Mary Carlisle, Lynne Overman and Dorothy Peterson are in the cast.

* * *

Buck Jones Rides.

"The Overland Express," Buck Jones' film describing the establishment of the pony express between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Cal., comes to the Majestic theater today for two days. Set against the turbulent background of 1861, of California gold and untamed savagery, the story promises to be one of the most thrilling of the current crop of Westerns. Buck is cast as a hard riding buckaroo who dreams of carrying the mail much faster by pony than the stage coaches have been making it. To get the franchise he must make a trial run and enemies conspire to keep him from making it. The other feature on the bill is "Held For Ransom," a story of kidnaping as a racket.

* * *

Music and Guns.

In the silent picture days, the Western hero had to win his gal with only his horse, his fists and his gun, but in this picture era he has music. Fred Scott, hero of "The Fighting Deputy," adds a good baritone to his fighting equipment. Scott was a concert singer before coming to the screen, but gets his riding naturally as he is a native Californian. His new picture gets away to the sound of pounding hoofbeats and a man hunt is on which is filled with thrills, and which ends only when Scott gets his man. Eddie Cantor's last film "Ali Baba Goes To Town," with Tony Martin, June Lang and June Hovick, rounds out the Ritz bill today and Saturday.

According to an economist "Prosperity is a by-product"—also a buy product.

Wisconsin's attorney general has ruled that a cream puff must contain cream—leaving in doubt the legal requirements for angel cake.

Not being a native of Ohio, Harry Hopkins will probably refrain from disclosing which of the Democratic candidates for governor he would support if he could vote in the primaries.

McVey Post Observes Anniversary.

THIS week's observance of the nineteenth anniversary of the organization of McVey post, American Legion, also brings to Mansfield for the week-end the annual convention of the Fifth district of this organization of World war veterans.

With the approach of the twentieth anniversary of the signing of the armistice, which ended hostilities of that great and costly conflict among nations, it is timely and interesting to consider the fine work that has been done by the American Legion during these years of rehabilitation, as well as the stabilizing influence it has exerted in the contribution of its leaders to the sound thinking of the past two decades.

Activities of the Legion in behalf of disabled war veterans, needy comrades and their families, and widows and children of deceased veterans, have been outstanding through the years.

Also, in addition to assuming a full share of civic responsibilities, American Legion members—as individuals and as a group—have provided examples in patriotism and in good citizenship which could not fail to have a beneficial effect on the entire community.

As the remnant of Civil war survivors pass from earth, and as veterans of the Spanish-American war move toward less active age, those who served as youthful soldiers in the World war now approach middle age to find increasing responsibilities of upholding traditions and assuming leadership in patriotic thought that has always been expected from those who served their country in time of war.

The record of the American Legion, locally and as a national organization, has thus far been highly creditable and there is every reason to feel confident that it will become increasingly so with each passing year.

Mansfield extends congratulations to McVey post on this anniversary occasion. Appreciation of what has already been done by the American Legion mingles with confidence that this organization will become an even more potent factor in spreading the doctrine of patriotic Americanism.

Lexington Avenue Speedway.

MAYOR HUNTER'S determination to provide better protection on the Lexington avenue speedway should be so strongly supported as to insure quick action by the state highway department—if such action is really needed in order to enforce reasonable speed regulations on that thoroughfare.

The peculiar condition of Mansfield's corporation lines being at different points on Lexington avenue may have something to do with the 35-mile-an-hour speed limit INSIDE the city and the 45-mile-an-hour speed permitted OUTSIDE the city, but it can have no application to the 50, 60 or 70-mile speed attained by a considerable number of motorists on this stretch of highway, either INSIDE or OUTSIDE of the city.

The fact is that dangerous and inexcusable speed is indulged in by many local and transient motorists on a number of Mansfield's streets—and it is only the recent fatality on Lexington avenue that now directs attention to that particular spot.

What has been needed for years is a blinker signal at the intersection of Lexington avenue and Cook road, as warning of danger—also strict enforcement of a 35-mile-an-hour speed limit on Lexington avenue to that point.

Florida Law Moves Fast.

FLORIDA law is moving swiftly toward execution of Franklin McCall, kidnap-murderer of 5-year-old Jimmy Cash, who was abducted from his home on the night of May 28.

When there is no doubt of guilt, as in this case, and when the crime is so atrocious, the Florida law, under which death sentence can be executed without long delay, seems to have advantages over the long-drawn-out procedure associated with capital offenders in Ohio and some other states.

It is essential, of course, that accused persons have their rights protected in every possible way, and that the death penalty be not inflicted in advance of giving the convicted man or woman full opportunity to establish his or her innocence. It must be maintained, however, that a maze of legal technicalities which tend to delay or defeat justice also serve to increase crime.

Those who conscientiously oppose the death penalty must surely be even more violently opposed to kidnaping and murder. While the country is infested with vicious beasts who wantonly kill, or who kidnap helpless babies, some lawful means of extermination must be maintained.

Politics Down on the Farm.

SPEAKING editorially, the Syracuse, (N. Y.) Journal says: "Once every year, at campaign time, scores of politicians clamber aboard the milk wagons and stump the state, strewing promises in all the rural districts as lavishly as the farmer himself sows his seeds. Experience has shown that few, if any, of these promises are ever fulfilled. With one possible exception . . . the net result of all these promises has been a series of crackpot laws that failed miserably and left the farmer worse off than he was before."

This is true of all other agricultural states, as well as New York. And wide-awake farmers, whether they deal in milk, fruit, vegetables, stock or anything else, are placing less trust in political panaceas and more trust in their own efforts. "God helps those who help themselves," is as applicable to farming as to any other enterprise. The politicians who manifest so great a concern for agriculture at election time have shown their true colors too often in the past to make it safe to trust them too far in the future.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

THERE will be no "repeal" of the National Labor Relations board, of the CIO or of the wage-hour law. Each will be strengthened, rather than weakened. That will be true even if a Republican administration comes to power. These institutions have become part of the fabric of the nation.

The National Labor Relations board has assumed jurisdiction, at the behest of groups affected, of virtually every category of worker—from the ditch digger to the highly paid categories, such as writers. It is a court so overwhelmed with cases that it soon will require far larger personnel.

The CIO, in spite of the depression, is gaining, quietly, one group of workers after another. If ever it joins hands with farm groups, its success will become unquestioned. The American Federation of Labor, in the meantime, at least through its president, William Green, sits hand in hand with labor foes on speakers' platforms. It is a curious sight, at least to newspaper men who have "covered" labor for years.

As for the wage-hour law, it merely is a beginning. Southern workers, once they are free to express themselves, will be no different from northern workers. It is not southern workers who have tried to retard a wage-hour law, but northern industrialists with cheap-labor plants in the south.

* * *

BUT THEN WHAT?

Are our problems, then, being solved?

We are going through a social evolution, slowly, stubbornly, but man still has not solved his economic problems or his relationships with other peoples.

Solving economic problems may require a greater social evolution than we are willing to undertake at present.

Thus we are likely to see monetary manipulations and governmental expenditures and cheap credit supplies—in an effort to escape fundamental changes. That may suffice until President Roosevelt's term ends.

Certain it is, no man harking back to the past can step into the presidency when Mr. Roosevelt retires without bringing a supreme tragedy to the nation—and to the world.

Will a far-seeing, bold, fearless man arise?

* * *

SAME ELSEWHERE.

England is facing the same problem. The Tories, under Chamberlain, have disquieted England more than that calm nation has been disquieted in centuries.

And when the inflationary movements of Hitler and Mussolini collapse, Germany and Italy will face collapse.

France, because it has been making some fundamental changes, may escape the tragedy, yet she too has been putting off the task of meeting economic change face to face.

Japan is nearer Communism than it ever was, for it tried to escape meeting the inevitable with a war.

Peace to the world depends not on a "return to normalcy" but in recognizing the socio-economic evolution and joining with it.

CLASS REUNION, 19—?

Answer to Japan Wins Applause

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Sentiment in the United States unquestionably is hard upon 100 per cent against any policy calculated to involve Uncle Sam in overseas hostilities.

Nevertheless, I believe that the average American heart warmed toward Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, our naval commander in oriental waters, for his answer (in effect, "Go chase yourselves!") to the recent warnings of the Japanese to get U. S. warships out of the way of their military operations on the Yangtze river.

It was an impudent request, if anyone should happen to inquire.

U. S. ships have as much right on the Yangtze as Japan's have. China justifiably could find fault with their presence there, but not the mikado.

* * *

A PARALLEL.

Suppose, for one reason or another, the United States had been tolerating a few British warships for example, steaming up and down the Mississippi. We would not, of course, but, if we did, it would be OUR business.

And, if we got tired of having such vessels in our midst, we could, with a perfect propriety, say to Britain, "Get these craft to heck out of here."

But suppose Germany were to notify the British to steam their boats out of the Father of Waters or Herr Hitler would be liable to drop a lot of bombs on them.

Wouldn't the British be apt to reply that, so long as they were welcome to Uncle Samuel on the Mississippi, they would stay there?

And would we not resent German interference also?

Well, it would be a parallel to the Yangtze situation.

* * *

ANOTHER SUPPOSITION.

Suppose, however, that Germany were to add, in its note to the British, this postscript:

"Your ships, in scooting out of our way down the Mississippi, may be bombed by us, accidentally. Therefore, please paint your craft in all kinds of funny colors, to enable our aviators to identify you, if possible, thus avoiding murdering you inadvertently."

That is the kind of safety that Japan offers to us on the Yangtze.

Incidentally, we are to guarantee that the Chinese do not imitate our decorations; that is our responsibility. If we do not accept it, our ships' fate is their own lookout.

* * *

U. S. ADMIRAL STAYS.

It appears that Admiral Yarnell is not going to get out of the Yangtze.

He is not going to re-paint his ships, either.

The Yangtze part of the Japanese demand was injurious in its nature, but the re-painting item was insulting, and an insult traditionally verges on being worse than an injury.

The British, following the American course, gave a similar answer to Japan regarding their ships.

* * *

IN THIS CASE?

Some authorities believe that Japan is trying to pick a quarrel with a more formidable power than China — in order to back down to overwhelming force.

This might be true if only Japanese statesmanship were to be considered. Japan has some sensible diplomats. When they are licked they know it. But the dominant force in Nippon is military and naval, and it is crazy. The Samurai, who rule, are pro-victory or pro-suicide — individually or nationally.

Japan always has worshiped the warrior.

China, until lately, always has despised him.

That is why Japan has been, hitherto, so cocky a little nation, and why China, so persistently, has been stepped on.

The Chinese, however, evidently have been driven mad enough to fight like fury. "Beware," as per the old saw, "the anger of a patient man." Japan appears to have stirred up one of 'em.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Alfred Hitchcock is back in town. Just stopping over. The British movie director, who turned in "The 39 Steps" and some other superb blood-curdlers, is going to Hollywood. It's his first trip to Hollywood, although he's been in the motion picture game 19 years.

He hasn't changed much. He's added seven pounds but you wouldn't notice. He weighs 279 pounds — "stripped and official," he says. He still thinks that the American steak is the best in the world . . . that hanging's too good for a director of color pictures who'll splash sunsets and red hunting coats on the screen. . . . that the picture-going public, which rightfully prefers steak and ice cream, is being gypped on goulash and chocolate eclairs.

He still likes to shock. Last year, overlooking the city from a friend's penthouse balcony, he told me that the ultimate in color movie drama would be a drop of blood on a daisy petal. This year his fancy is more subdued, but no less free.

"Now," he says, "I think the perfect subject for color would be an oyster. A touch of green would indicate that the oyster was bad and there would be your drama. I should like to film rain in color."

* * *

ALL that controversy stirred up by Sam Goldwyn about whether English pictures are better than Hollywood's leaves Hitchcock cold.

"Typing is the real evil," he says. "If you have the same people, you have the same story. If the movies seem to have 'stales,' it's because the same people keep moving through them in the same fashion.

"Actors should be permitted to act. The success of fine character actors like Paul Muni and Spencer Tracy should indicate the basis for enduring popularity. George Arliss owed his long-standing success to his willingness to experiment."

Hitchcock brought over with him a print of his latest picture, "The Wheel Spins," but he didn't tell me much about it, except that it was inspired by the "vanishing lady" story which Alexander Woollcott popularized. Margaret Lockwood, a new star, is in it, and Paul Lukas and Dame May Whitty. Gaumont did it from the Ethel Lina White best-seller.

* * *

MY FAVORITE interview pastime is picking out Hitchcockisms. In several years of passing the time of day with the director who has our bouquet for being the best across the water and probably the best anywhere if they can ever persuade him to try the Hollywood system, I've collected quite a few. Most recent are:

"A worm will turn all right—but if you tread on it, it just spreads.

"It's not true that I'm a woman-hater. I hate 'ladies'—on the screen and off.

"I'm not really a heavy eater—unless you mean that I'm heavy and I eat.

"I'm leaving New York to get rid of claustrophobia, batophobia, hysophobia and vertigo. In Hollywood, I'll probably acquire agoraphobia as a counter-balance."

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

It's Dangerous To Play TOO Safe.

Do you own an automobile? If you do, do you use it or do you leave it in the garage?

Are you afraid you'll get it scratched on a mountain road or bumped on the highway—afraid you'll burn out a bearing or puncture a tire when you're away from home? Or do you leave it in the garage because it's too precious a possession and cost you too much money?

"What nonsense!" you sneer. "How silly I'd be to do that. The tires would rot right there in the garage, even if the wheels never turned. The model would get out of date. The value would depreciate every year I owned it and in five or six years I couldn't get much more for it than my next door neighbor would receive after he has run his car all over the country and seen everything from British Columbia to Florida. Only a crank would do a thing like that with an automobile."

That's right—only a crank would do that with an automobile. But many human beings who think they are intelligent do much the same sort of thing with their lives.

They start with a nice new shiny Life that will go anywhere and climb almost any grade and have a wonderful pickup, with fine brakes and sixteen speeds forward—and they leave it in the garage till the tires rot off.

Of course they do live—in a way. They eat and they sleep and they work and they talk and they fill up their days somehow, without ever taking a chance. They walk around the block occasionally but they never get into the country. They keep busy—but you can hardly call it living. And as the years slip away, life depreciates. They have not used it but it loses its value for them. They haven't gone anywhere. They haven't seen anything worth seeing. They haven't filled their lives with memories—of ecstacy or of agony. They haven't made fools of themselves, they haven't suffered. They haven't tried to get anything, they haven't had anything it would have torn them apart to lose.

But some day those foolish, scared-cat "superior" people encounter on the highway of life some ordinary fellow who's taken his life and used it and risked it as it should be risked and has suffered great grief in the risking—but he tells them he doesn't regret a moment of his perilous adventure . . . And when he has finished his tale, they may look at him wistfully, with hungry envy in their eyes, and for just an instant they will see the truth and they will know that all their security is base coin compared with his beautiful commonplace daring.

So they learn when it is almost too late that the most dangerous thing is to try too hard to be safe.

Listen, World!

Just Dad—A Father's Day Article.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"Greater love hath no man than this,
that a man lay down his life for his friends."
—St. John 15-13.

I NEVER saw him in a new suit. Always those same worn seams, green with age. . . .

Queer, how some little thing like that will stab you sharper than a great tragedy! What wouldn't I give to see him standing now in fresh, fine tweeds . . . pooh-poohing the foolishness of it all, yet gleeful as any boy . . . with his tired shoulders straightened from their stoop and his laugh coming free, at last, from the tortured breath.

But maybe, Dad dear, you're wearing a better suit today than earth could ever give you . . . and finding your fill of the jokes and the battles you loved so well . . . with never a factory whistle to call you back to the grind. Ah, darling, your girl's hoping it's so!

If only I'd understand—before it was too late. But fathers—we take fathers so for granted, you and I. Mothers are different. Perhaps that's because it's the way of women to talk of themselves and their feelings. But men, for the most part, just go plugging along, like a part of the scenery—with their children never dreaming, until they're grown themselves, that the creature they took so casually, as part of their personal possessions, had a life and longing of his own.

And so I saw him for those twenty years—a weary, bent man in a shabby suit and a shabby job, with a blind eye and a twisted hand and that tortured breath, but never a whimper of complaint about any of it.

Always working. But never too hard-pressed to take a grieving liftle girl on his knee, and wipe her tears, and whisper, "Now, lassie; there, there!"

Nor ever so dulled by poverty or pain but that he'd flame at the sight of injustice! Then, child-like, I'd stare in wonder at this sudden stranger, with his flashing eye and tumbled hair and the fierce words that came storming out of his mouth . . .

But mostly, he was just Dad. Dad, whom I thought "didn't understand" when I'd be wanting a new frill or a reckless fling and be had to deny me. Dad, who never went anywhere new . . . never did anything different. Just Dad.

That was how it went. And only when the word came—like a plunging knife—that he was gone, did I suddenly see him for what he was . . . not just my dad, but a separate man, brilliant, adventurous, great-hearted. A man meant for free trails and towering peaks—but who had put it all aside, and chosen drudgery and frustration as his lot, for the sake of the woman and the children he loved. Yet he was haunted—every hour he lived—by the far calls he had denied.

And, as though death had wakened me roughly, I saw the truth I had missed in my selfish youth—that all the world was filled with just such selfless saints. Shy, shabby heroes, dressed in overalls, toiling over ditches and desks, who might have stood in Marco Polo's restless boots . . . or wrought the magic of an Edison . . . or followed Lincoln on his lonely trail . . . or worn the halo of a Father Damien—

Yet, silently, they'd put the dream away,
And chosen, for love's sake, to be "Just Dad!"

If only I'd realized in time! If only I had done some little, tender things to show my thanks.

All through those first black nights—and many a night yet—I sobbed the love and gratitude that came too late. But never do I see a patient man go plodding by, but that my spirit straightens to salute, and from my heart I cry—

"Father, hear this my prayer!
"Before he goes
"Let someone say, 'I care!'
"And for those bright adventures
"Which he might have had,
"Let someone whisper,
"'I'm so grateful, Dad!'"

Don't "Beetle" the Road.

The Pennsylvania motor police are launching a new drive against highway accidents.

They are out to "get" both the speeder and the "beetle" driver.

Anyone who has observed a beetle trying to make its way along a road will understand what a "beetle" driver is.

The offense with which he is charged is that of poking along in traffic moving at a reasonable rate of speed, forcing other cars to cut around his and causing traffic jams.

The Keystone state has no monopoly of "snail" and "beetles" on the highways.

And in more states than one they are now cracked down on and told to "step on it."

A happy medium between driving too fast and driving too slow affords the safest means of getting from where one is to where one would be.—Detroit Free Press.

FATE OF 8 WHO SURVIVED SHIP DISASTER TOLD

'Tale of the Grosvenor' True Story of Shipwreck, Among Library Additions.

"The Tale of the Grosvenor" by Jonathan Lee, a true account of the wreck of the East India company ship on the east coast of Africa and of the fate of the survivors as they struggled on foot across the continent to Cape Town is among the new fiction added by the Public Library this week.

The narrative is exciting and full of the hardships which eight men endured who finally reached their destination after 17 days of wandering.

A composite of modern life is found in "The Merry Merry Maidens" by Helen Grace Carlisle. The book takes its title from a group of high school girls who were closely associated. The author follows the destiny of each, going back from the present time to the World war, and telling what happened in the intervening years.

Other fiction new to the library this week is "Winged Pharoah" by Joan Grant, a story of ancient Egypt told in simple and poetic language; "And One Was Beautiful," by Miller; "Death Dupes A Lady"; "Run Far, Run Fast," by Goldstone; and "Seven Slash Range," by Foster.

Dancer Writes of Spain.

An interesting new non-fiction book is "Dancer In Madrid," an exciting account of a sojourn in Spain during the first half of the Spanish Civil war. Janet Riesenfeld, daughter of a famous musical director, and well known as a dancer started for Spain to begin a European tour of dance recitals and to marry a Spanish land owner. After her arrival her own plans were over shadowed by the conflict and by the tragedy it brought.

Bob Davis, world traveler and correspondent for the New York Sun wrote articles on Japan, China and Hawaii, which have been published together as "Oriental Odyssey." These sketches on every phrase of Oriental life and manners form a wide panaroma of the East.

"Defoe: A Biography" by James Sutherland traces the varying fortunes of Defoe's private and public life, explaining his political conduct and his importance as a man of letters.

"His Excellency, George Clinton, Critic of The Constitution" by E. Wilder Spaulding, is the story of the governor of New York who was a significant figure during the French and Indian wars, the Revolution and in the early days of the Union because he represented the majority.

The non-fiction list this week also includes "Ladies and Gentlemen in Victorian Fiction," by Mrs. E. M. de la Pasture; "The English Novelists; A Survey of the Novel By Twenty Contemporary Novelists;" "Unicameralism In Practice" by Summers; "Modern Group Discussion" by Judson and Judson; "Income Structures of the U. S." by Leven; "Public Papers and Addresses of Franklin D. Roosevelt;" "Japanese Prints," Leibowitz; "Tombs, Travel and Trouble," Griswold; "Dark Islands," Vandercook; "Inspired Amateurs," by Guinagh; and "Corsairs of France," by Norman.

FORFEIT BONDS ON TAXI CHARGE

Proprietor and Driver Fail to Answer Charge in Court.

Richard N. Van Dyne, 600 School road, manager of the De-Luxe Taxicab company, and John McEvoy, 270 Newman street, driver, both forfeited bonds of $16.30 today when they failed to appear in municipal court to answer charge of violating the city "governor" ordinance enacted by council six months ago.

Van Dyne posted the bonds in municipal court yesterday after police had arrested McEvoy and charged him with operating a taxicab not equipped with a governor. Van Dyne was charged with placing a taxicab in operation not equipped with a governor.

The ordinance requires all taxicabs operating in Mansfield must be equipped with governors, preventing speeds in excess of 45 miles an hour.

HEARS SENTENCE IN SLAYING CASE

Mrs. Barker Given 10 Years In Death of Business Partner.

DETROIT—(AP)—Mrs. Julia M. Barker, once wealthy Detroit real estate operator, was sentenced today to serve 10 to 15 years in the Detroit house of correction for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Edith Mae Cummings last Jan. 15.

Mrs. Barker two weeks ago was convicted of manslaughter. Standing erect before the bench today, Mrs. Barker told the judge, "I am absolutely innocent. I never laid a hand on Edith Mae Cummings."

Mrs. Cummings died of a pistol wound in a snow-covered ravine near Belleville, Mich. The state, which sought a murder conviction, contended Mrs. Barker shot her business associate during an argument.

WEIGHS MOTION

Judge Considers Request To Drop Lamb Ouster Charge.

PORTSMOUTH—(INS)—Hearing of a motion to quash disbarment proceedings against Edward Lamb, CIO regional counsel and vice president of the National Lawyers Guild, was continued until June 30 today by Judge Hector S. Young, of Marion.

Judge Young took the case under advisement, indicating he would hear further arguments and finally dispose of the motion.

PLUME FOR HATS

They'll Return to Favor In Spring, Stylist Says.

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Take a tip from the lark—birds and bird plumage will be worn on women's hats next spring.

Feathers, said Film Designer Orry-Kelly today, will be seen soon, while plumes will return to favor in the fall and winter.

3,000 DOOMED BY NAZI PURGE

Writer Says Their Lot's to Be Similar to 51 Jewish Wanderers on Barge.

enough feeling left to be afraid when that same S. S. commander who had expelled us from our homes, came riding up on a bicycle. He had been called by an Austrian frontier guard.

"He yelled at us, 'who are you?' we said, 'we are the Jews of Kittsee,' and we told him what had happened to us. He raged and shouted: 'You pig Jew liars. Show me your papers. How can you prove you came from Kittsee?' We told him we had no papers, as he knew very well, since he had taken them from us.

"He cursed us some more and then he went down to the Hungarian frontier, and talked with the police, but soon he saw he could not shove us past the Hungarians, not right then, anyway. He came back more furious than ever and said 'come along, my pretties, I'm glad to have you in my hands once more.'

"When we got there, back to my own house, he put the oldest ones and the children in the cellar and then put us to scraping paint off the floors. We worked until midnight without food, and then he backed a truck to the door, loaded us in, and with a brass band playing and torchlights burning, he made a sort of triumphal train and drove us out of town.

* * *

"We drove about four hours to a place called Oedenburg, about 70 miles from Kittsee, away up on the frontier where the Hungarians were not expecting us, and there for the last time he shoved us over the border with kicks and blows, and his final word was 'if you ever let me see you again, woe to your ashes.'

"God saved us there. The good Jews of a certain household we stumbled upon persuaded the Hungarian authorities to let them charter an old barge and anchor it in the Danube and here we are."

* * *

I went into the hold to look at their quarters. The barge was an empty shell. It was divided by a partition into two halves. On one side slept the 24 men, on the other the women and children, all on straw sacks with a few horse blankets to cover them. There were three Bibles on the men's table, and two bearded men had salvaged their red velvet "talis" and "tefelen." The only light came through the hatch. The ladders leading to the hold were acrobatically difficult and I wondered how the old ones managed it.

* * *

When the whisper had passed around that the visitor came from America, stifled cries went up and one after another they came forward with names and addresses of relatives in "die staaten." Frau Helena Singer, 52, the wife of Jakob Singer, 57, begged me to record their names for she has her mother and three brothers in America. The brothers are Emil and Julius and Fred Knapp, and Fred, she thought, lives at 283 Cypress avenue, "Bronx, New Jersey," though it might be New York.

Another Singer who had stood the battering miraculously was old Wilhelm, 77 and paralytic. He quavered that the eldest Singer, Berta, 82, was the one in a hospital at Bratislava. After four days of wandering she had broken down completely near the Czech frontier, and the guards had kindly sent an ambulance for her.

Aladar Reissner cut in with the request to name his cousin, Dr. Oscar Harmos, M. D., of the U. S. Marine hospital, Norfolk, Va. Alfred Balassa said he had a sister, Edith Balassa, at the Heighton Farm school, Darling P. O., Delaware county, Pa. Mikaa Weiner and Alfred and Rosa Hauser said they had a cousin, Albert Weiner, at 1154 Stratford avenue, Bronx, N. Y.

* * *

They all want to go to America, or anywhere on earth where they can find a home, but preferably America. None of them can move. They are floating between hostile nations, without a country, without nationality, living on the charity of the Jewish relief committee which pays the rent of the boat, and furnishes food from a nearby village.

The Hungarian and Czechoslovak governments are afraid to give them asylum, for fear that to these 51 would soon be added thousands or tens of thousands from Nazi Austria. Both Hungary and Czechoslovakia already have whole communities of refugees and like all the nations of Europe they heistate to open their doors to what may prove a veritable migration. Pity is cheap, and the wandering Jews receive it from some, but no one will receive them.

* * *

Two months of living in the open air, free from the immediate terror of the Nazi pogrom, has given them brown complexions, but as they relate the details of their experiences, the brown fades and fear pales their faces. Thousands more are due to suffer their fate.

Death has seemed an improvement on life to many thousand Jews in Germany and Austria already, but the months to come will bring it to thousands more. The fate of the 51 wandering Jews in the Danube is typical of the worst crisis that Jewry has faced since the Exodus.

4 HURT AS AUTO SKIDS, HITS TREE

Accident Occurs When Driver Tries to Pass Another Car on 30N West of City.

Cohen, were treated for minor lacerations and bruises and released.

State Highway Patrolman C. B. Tieben, who investigated, said Presburg had attempted to pass another machine and ran off the road onto the berm on the left side of the highway. He said the car apparently skidded to the opposite side of the road and then travelled through a ditch 150 feet before colliding with a tree 12 inches in diameter.

Occupants of the machine were extricated from the wreckage by passing motorists.

In Mansfield last evening, William Yarger, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Yarger, 34 Dawson avenue, was treated at General hospital for cuts and bruises when the bicycle he was riding collided with a machine operated by Merle Wilging, 616 Marion avenue.

Wilging told police that he was driving on Glenwood boulevard at 6:30 p. m. when the youth rode out of a driveway and ran into the side of his car. He took the child to the hospital.

REWARDS SAFE AUTO DRIVERS

Gasoline Distributor on Lookout For Courteous Motorists.

Did you see an act of courteous driving today, or did some one see you perform an act of courtesy to a fellow motorist?

If so, you or the other fellow is eligible for a safety award to be made by Hi-Speed gas stations in the Mansfield area, Charles Hartenfels, distributor in the Mansfield district, announced today.

The act of courtesy may be giving up your right-of-way at an intersection, or parking properly on a hill, or any of a dozen other acts that make for safety on the highway.

Judges in the safety contest must be notified of the act, and full particulars as to how that may be done may be obtained from any Hi-Speed gas station.

VALUES 2 TREES AT $300 IN SUIT

Woman Files Action Against Truck Form for Damaging Property.

Joyce Kilmer's poem "Trees" might well be the theme of a damage action filed today in municipal court by Mrs. Edith Stickrod, 263 Park avenue east, against the Hinchcliff Motor Service, 153 East Fifth street.

Mrs. Stickrod sued for $300, which she claims two trees mowed down by a driverless truck owned by the company are worth.

In her petition the plaintiff claims that last October one of the company's trucks which had been parked west of her home on Park avenue east, broke loose and coasted over the lawn destroying one tree and damaging another, so that it is dying. She states that each tree was valued at $150.

WOMAN DEFIES WARDEN, FINED

Argument Over Tying Up Her Dog Costs Her $10 and Costs.

A colored woman with a derogatory opinion of County Dog Warden William Miller, and a penchant for airing it, was fined $10 and costs in municipal court when she pleaded guilty to charges of disorderly conduct.

Miller testified that the defendant Mrs. Harlena Graves, 15 Lewis avenue, defied an order to tie up her dog after it had bitten Romaine Gruban, 106 Lewis avenue, and had used abusive language.

Questioned by the court, Mrs. Graves admitted she had "cussed" the officer, but not until he had told her to keep her "d-- dog tied and I mean it."

Mrs Graves posted bond for payment of her fine and costs of $17.95 before July 15.

INSTRUCTORS AT STATE MEETING

4 Vocational Agriculture Teachers Attend Columbus Sessions.

Four vocational agriculture instructors from Richland county schools were in Columbus today to attend the annual state conference for vocational teachers at which L. L. Rummell, of the Ohio chain store committee, was the principal speaker.

In the county delegation were D. T. Friday, instructor at the Bellville and Butler high schools; W. W. Nesbit, Cass township high school, Shiloh; W. S. Barger, Lucas high school, and G. R. Boling, Union rural high school.

In his talk to the instructors, Rummell urged the building of home markets for farm products as a means of increasing the farmer's income.

Congressman Since June 9 Gets Paid for Entire Term.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Rep. Roy (D., N. H.) balanced his accounts today and discovered he had earned $2,855.50 a day for the seven days he served in the house this session.

Roy, who was seated June 9 after successfully contesting the election of Arthur B. Jenks, Republican, found his experience as a congressman "very nice." He got paid for the entire term.

Books For Children

* * *

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

"College in Crinoline" by Marjorie Medary is a school story for older girls. The chief character is Bessie Q who also appeared in the author's "Prairie Anchorage." This is the story of Bessie Q's first year at a co-educational college in Iowa, during the Civil war. The many strict rules and regulations, then in force, were hard on a lively girl, and she frequently got herself into scrapes. However, she soon made friends, the most important one being young Tom Richard, a fellow-student and also a farmer.

Not many girls went to College in those days, and the idea of co-education was hotly discussed. The war plays an important part as, eventually, it involves the entire college.

GIVEN PAROLE

The Richland county prisoner is Lucy Mae Lawton, colored, who was sent to the institution June 16, 1936, to serve from one to 20 years for cutting with intent to wound. She is to be released Sept. 1.

ASKS $500 FOR LOSS OF CROPS

Plaintiff Says He Had to Vacate Farm Before End of Lease.

A suit to collect $500 covering the loss of crops and revenue as the result of being forced to vacate a farm east of Mansfield last March, had been filed today in common pleas court by Leo Smith of near Mansfield.

Naming A. E. Lantz, Mifflin township, as defendant, Smith contends that he had leased the farm from Lantz until October, 1938, and had planned his crop schedule on that basis.

He says that the amount asked in the suit represents the loss of 25 acres of wheat on the 144-acre farm and his one-third share of certain revenue for the remainder of the lease period.

GHOST IN FLESH

BRAZIL, Ind.—(INS)—Two victims of a collision between a truck and a car here presented a ghost-like appearance. The two men, John and George Williams, who were hurt, carried a big jar of mustard and a sack of flour between them on the front seat of the automobile. The force of the collision broke the jar and tore the sack, smearing both with mustard and flour.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

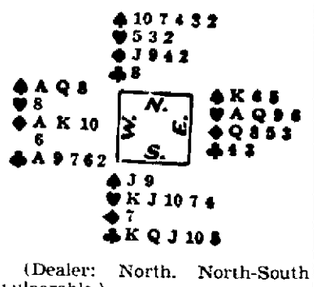
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DANGER STALKS YOU

There are always possible dangers that may be lying in wait for you whenever you play bridge. Sometimes they hit you a lot harder than you would ever expect. Most bids involve a certain amount of hazard in both directions, a chance to gain and a chance to lose, especially those bids which seem somewhat doubtful at the time you make them. But then the main reason you play at all is because the game is an adventure If the risk were gone, the fun would be gone too.

When North and East passed on this deal South put in a bid of 1-Heart and West doubled. When this passed around to East he decided to let it stand. South had a chance to bid 2-Clubs, which he feared would also be doubled, so decided to take his chances on the first bid.

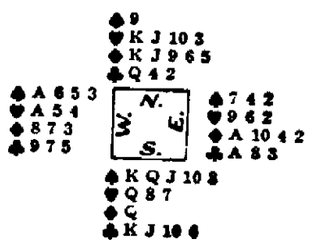


(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

The diamond K was cashed and followed by the A. which South trumped. A club was led and West took with the A. He returned another diamond and South trumped. The declarer now cashed the club K and followed with the 10, which East ruffed. East laid down the spade K and continued with a spade which West took with the Q. The spade A was then ruffed by South South led the club Q and East ruffed He returned the diamond Q which South took with the spade J. The club 5 was taken by East's heart Q and the heart A took the last trick.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the safest contract for the North-South players on this deal?

Half Million Chinese Flee Yellow River Destruction

FLOOD PUSHES JAP MILITARY DRIVES ASIDE

Waters Won't Abate Till Fall, Engineers Say; India Fights Cholera.

(By Associated Press)

Nature, as though in imitation of man-made destruction and death in Spain and China, today was putting 500,000 Chinese peasants to flight with map-changing flood and spreading a cholera plague in India.

About 90 per cent of the Yellow river's waters were rolling across central China, ruining well-laid military plans in a rush to join a tributary of China's other mighty waterway, the Yangtze.

Half-naked Japanese engineers, confronted by a new foe, struggled desperately alongside Chinese coolies, trying to mend broken dykes, but the river was cutting a new channel.

Japanese staff officers held little hope the flood could be bridled until next fall or winter brought a lowering of the river.

"This is the worst thing that ever happened to China—the combination of war and flood," said John Earl Baker, head of international Red Cross relief work at Shanghai.

Halts Japs Offensive.

The flood brushed aside the Japanese drive on Chengchow and shifted virtually all military pressure to the Yangtze valley.

A Japanese column attacked a town 85 miles northeast of Kiukiang, expecting to flank that river port where the Chinese have formidable brooms protecting Hankow from approach by gunboat and transport.

The government of the united provinces, a British subdivision of India, ordered 11,000,000 doses of anti-cholera vaccine today and at the same time reported 16,500 persons had died in a seven-week epidemic affecting 44 of the province's 48 districts.

Superstition and ignorance which causes orthodox Hindus to throw their dead into the Ganges river and also to bathe in its waters gave contagious impetus to the cholera scourge. Nearly 50,000,000 persons live in the united provinces.

The was in Spain, which will be two years old in another month. was marked by stiffined government resistance along the Mijares river, about 35 miles north of Valencia, and a slowing up of the insurgent win-the-war push toward that seaport.

The government had massed all available men and equipment along the river and reported recapture of Villarreal, on the Valencia side of the stream, after a fierce hand-to-hand struggle.

Dr. Kendig's Ashes Interred Today In Native Hayesville

HAYESVILLE — The ashes of Dr. W. C. Kendig, distinguished Cincinnati neurologist and psychiatrist, were interred in his native Hayesville today, fulfilling the wishes expressed in his will.

A number of professional associates and friends accompanied the ashes here and attended the rites at 11 a. m. at the Hayesville cemetery. Dr. H. E. Andrews, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Ashland, conducted the services.

The funeral cortege was led by Probate Judge William L. Lueders of Cincinnati who had charge of arrangements for the cremation of Dr. Kendig's body. In his will, Dr. Kendig instructed Judge Lueders, under whom he served for 28 years, to see to it that his request for burial in Hayesville be carried out.

The will said that his body be cremated and the ashes placed in an urn and buried in the family plot in "Hayesville's home for the dead."

Dr. Kendig, who died last Christmas day, bequeathed $5,000 to the village of Hayesville for a public school athletic field. Not more than half is to be used for the purchase of the field and the erection of a shelter house. The remainder is to be held in trust for care and upkeep of "Kendig Athletic Field."

Conferees Study Ohio Relief Compromise

Up and Down THE STREET

Leo C. Perl of Mansfield and the Ohio Brass company is an ardent fisherman and he is particularly fond of bass fishing, but he is not the Leo L. Pearl who was haled into court at Ashland and fined $25 this week for being a little too previous with his bass fishing. The Mansfield Perl has had to take a lot of joking about the arrest, but he insists that Leo L. Pearl and himself are two different and distinct persons.

They're still laughing in an uptown business place at a recent incident, in which two girls found a wastebasket in the women's room on fire. They tried throwing water on it with a water glass, but were making no headway, and hurriedly called to an office boy to get a bucket. Said office boy looked all over, and couldn't find one. So he dashed into the boss' office and asked for a requisition so he could run over to a hardware store and buy one! The anti-climax to the episode came when another worker, called to the scene, found a fire extinguisher back of the door to the room in which the fire was smoldering.

* * *

Workers at the relief office were amazed yesterday when a man returned a grocery order for $3 to them with the explanation that he had been able to get along without it. The order had been given to him as an emergency in case the groceries he had purchased with his own money didn't last until his first regular relief order was due, which was June 16. Yesterday he returned the uncashed order, saying that by careful management his own groceries had been made to last and would the worker please give the $3 order to some one who needed it more than he. Which is a side of the relief picture seldom seen by the public.

URGES RELIEF OFFICE CLOSING

Cleveland Welfare Head Cites Attacks on Workers; $20,000 Left for 66,000 Needy.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Citing attacks upon case investigators, welfare workers urged the city today to close district relief offices and end a situation which is "growing steadily worse."

Relief Commissioner Frank E. Bubna said less than $20,000 remained for "extreme emergency" food orders among the city's 66,000 destitute. Officials expressed doubt that a special session of the state legislature would make funds available speedily.

District office secretaries reported that at least six field workers were assaulted this week by irate "reliefers" who failed to receive emergency orders.

"Attacks on the staff and threats against them have increased greatly," the secretaries said in a joint statement. "The nervous, tense feeling of the clients is such that outbreaks are imminent."

The report advised against police action "because the presence of policemen sometimes irritates groups of clients."

"It's dynamite," said Mrs. Della Milder, a district secretary. "Whoever is responsible for keeping my relief office open, when there is no money for food for two-thirds of the 3,300 families on our rolls, is taking a great deal on himself."

A group of indigents waited silently to request emergency orders. Policemen sat nearby as Miss Gladys Berger, her cheek bearing scratches inflicted Wednesday by an enraged client, heard stories of hunger, illness and eviction.

New Washington Youth Arrested After Narrowly Escaping Crash.

Gerald Ault, 17, of New Washington, who narrowly missed colliding with a state patrol motorcycle when he attempted to pass a car on the crest of a hill north of Mansfield on Route 39 today was haled into municipal court on a careless and reckless driving charge.

Arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, Ault pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $15 and costs.

Patrolman A. E. Mercer told the court that the youth attempted to pass another car on a hill and nearly collided head-on with the motorcycle he was riding. He said he was forced off the improved section of the road.

PUTS BLAME FOR MOST OF LABOR UNREST ON FEAR OF LOSING JOB

More human understanding in the employer's dealings with his workmen and more full-time jobs to boost the worker's self-respect will provide the only solution to modern labor problems, Whiting Williams, of Cleveland, nationally-known industrial consultant, said last night in a talk at Mansfield Senior high school.

Williams, a native of Shelby, spoke under the auspices of the Delano lodge and the Rotary, Kiwanis, Optimist and Hermit clubs. Approximately 250 persons heard his lecture on "Can Labor, Capital and Government Get Together?"

"There are no complex issues in the labor problem; it is merely an accumulation of small individual grievances that can be ironed out with the right understanding between employer and employe," Williams said.

"The depression has put fear into the minds of laborers—fear of losing their jobs through favoritism of the boss or declining industrial output, and that fear alone accounts for 85 to 90 per cent of the labor troubles of the past year.

"One reason that the CIO has made a tremendous appeal to the worker is that it offers protection from the fear of losing his job, but it offers little more than that."

Once the industrial curve moves upward again, labor organizers will have more difficulty holding their groups together to battle with employers, he said, "since there is always too wide a gap between a large group of unskilled workers and a small group of skilled workers."

"But the biggest gap in the ranks of labor is between the employed and unemployed, and it must be spanned if government, capital and labor are to get together," he pointed out.

Critical of the government's attempt to set the worker's wage and hourly scale, he predicted that in 20 years labor will regret the passage of the wage-hour bill and the influence of the Wagner Labor Relations act.

"If you control a man's job, you control his life and thinking, and that never works. Besides, it is practically impossible to set a wage level for the widely differentiated jobs that modern industry affords," he asserted.

More government WPA or PWA jobs will not solve the labor problem, either, he said. Such jobs, he pointed out, are at the best only temporary and can do nothing to provide the necessary security and self-respect the worker needs.

Williams was introduced by Joseph Scanlon, president of the Delano lodge.

HOUSE, SENATE BOTH APPROVE TAX MORTGAGE

Separate Plans Figured to Produce From $66,000,000 to $76,000,000.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Products of a single day's intensive session after five weeks of deadlock, two widely divergent poor relief programs vied today for final acceptance by Ohio's senate and house.

Joint conference managers of the two chambers will strive next week to untangle the two programs and produce one which their colleagues will vote into immediate effectiveness.

Both houses recessed indefinitely but probably will return Wednesday when conference reports are expected.

Potential revenue made available, strictly on a "paper" basis and only to be realized fractionally in actual money, ranged from $66,000,000 under the senate program to $76,000,000 for the house plan.

$50,000,00 "Guess."

Largest item in each estimate was an admitted "guess" of $50,000,000 for a bill permitting issuance of bonds against anticipated collections of delinquent taxes. Spokesmen for cities such as Cleveland and Toledo called that portion of both programs a mere gesture which could not produce for them any 1938 relief funds.

Noticeably absent from both programs were two provisions which previously had been called "must" requirements on any relief plan:

1. Insistence that local communities match state grants dollar for dollar;

2. Demands that the legislature provide a "pay-as-you-go" plan and not mortgage future revenues.

The largest single revenue producer in both programs was an extension, beyond Dec. 31, 1939, of existing utility excise, admissions, beverage, malt and wort taxes for one year, under a senate bill, and five years under the house plan.

This difference gave the conference committee its major job, reconciling divergent viewpoints on how far into the future the legislature should "mortgage' revenues for the rest of this year's relief needs, estimated from $13,000,000 to $17,000,000.

Conferees were faced also with adjusting a house increase of the present .65 of one per cent utility excise to a flat one per cent, which had been effective until last spring.

Both programs contained bills calling for state administration of local relief expenditures. The senate vested most authority in the state auditor while the house would give it to a newly-created relief director, to be appointed by the governor.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Roosevelt Has Followed Wrong Course Trying to Cut Down States' Rights

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The New Deal would have fared better up to now if President Roosevelt and those who speak for him had had the candor to say in the beginning and to repeat from time to time that the states had forfeited their rights in proportion to their refusal of responsibility and their inability to meet their obligations to their people.

Instead the procedure has been to undermine or crash through their rights and pretend that they are unimpaired—a course which smacks of cunning and suggests unspoken motives. The end of this would be the end of the states by a process of crumbling, whereas it would be better if the people were to face the fact that they are citizens of a nation and not of their respective states and prepare their minds for the abolition of the states. Not many people were state-conscious when Mr. Roosevelt took office, and comparatively few are now, although in the last few years some have learned that certain states offer them advantages in taxes.

* * *

Florida and Nevada frankly invite persons of wealth or moderate income to move in and escape certain taxes which are imposed in their home states, and they have laws which enable such refugees to establish fictitious residences. Connecticut and New Jersey offer similar inducements to certain classes of New Yorkers.

On the other hand, many states impose transit or import taxes in commerce from other states, and three at least have tried to enforce immigration restrictions based not on character but on the national immigration regulation which requires a foreign immigrant to prove that he or she is not likely to become a public charge. Colorado enforced this one with soldiers.

* * *

The reservation of the fiction of states' rights has been the worst handicap to the effort to design national legislation intended to improve the condition of the nation and the whole people. As was said in the case of the NRA, there is a chiseling percentage which can ball up or thwart any program which rests on the honor system.

Men and corporations in highly competitive business who have to reckon costs in cents and mills, not because they are greedy but in order to meet their rivals' prices, can be overblamed for deserting one region to settle in another to save money. Similarly, a housewife with a dollar to spend for groceries will shop at the chain store, owned by a soulless corporation, where she can get 12 cents' worth more for her dollar than the local independent can offer. Her money is no more sentimental than the big manufacturer's.

* * *

The pretense of good will and great respect for the states while the Roosevelt administration have persistently demanded laws giving the national government financial and political mortgages on the states' authority gives rise to a suspicion that the New Deal is trying to put something over, even a dictatorship.

The arrogant, bulldozing attitude of the president's favorite political sluggers has increased the alarm, although it must be admitted that many localities, such as Jersey City, Louisiana and, if you want to make anything out of it, New York City, have local strong-arm statesmen who do the same.

Locally such conduct is just the working of democracy, but nationally it is called dictatorship. But it does not follow that a mere reorganization of the country into departments, zones or districts combining several states in one and honestly enlarging the authority of the national government to abolish outmoded restrictions would lead to a dictatorship.

The departments or whatever, could still retain all the authority they were fit to use as sections of a nation while waiving obstructive and in some cases parasitic rights for the good of all.

* * *

And certainly there would be no loss of effectiveness, because the states, with their predatory and wasteful political machines, are inharmonious, in efficient and in many respects unable to meet the obligations which parallel their rights as states. Many responsibilities of the states are in default now and never will be met again, and some rights have been whittled away, but the method has been one of stealth or deceit, and those who have clamored about it have received small thanks because the people are so little state-conscious.

If Mr. Roosevelt had put the proposition to them they would have indicated a degree of assent which would have made it easier to put through measures for national recovery and reform. But he didn't put it to them. Instead he has tried to put it over on them.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Blockade" is the movie news of the week—and for timely significance, of the year.

The setting is war-shattered Spain of today. The hero (Henry Fonda) is a simple country boy who, instead of fleeing his native soil when it is threatened, rouses his fellows to resist. The heroine (Madeleine Carroll) is a girl without a country unwillingly involved as a spy in war-fostering machinations of an international intrigue artist (John Halliday).

Producer Walter Wanger, by refraining scrupulously from accuracy in uniforms, place names and any other slips which might identify the combatting forces as Loyalist or Nationalist, presents a neutral front—and yet the chances of "Blockade" for exhibition in certain countries are slight indeed.

The film through exciting drama and finally through a direct appeal from screen to audience via Fonda's impassioned fade-out speech, is a powerful denunciation of modern warfare—the bombing of cities, the murder of civilians, the starving of non-combatants. Cries Fonda: "It isn't war—it's MURDER! . . . WHERE is the conscience of the world?"

* * *

The screen, hampered by fear of international market complications and reprisals for future product, has never gone so far in frank statement of this theme. There have been many anti-war pictures (most notably "All Quiet on the Western Front") but until now there has been none to grapple with a conflict currently at its bitterest. It is one thing for the screen to agree with Sherman concerning the late World war, and another for it to speak right out in meeting concerning what goes on in Spain—or indirectly, for that matter, in China.

That is why "Blockade," product of an industry which day after day harps on the folly of crime, the invincibility of true love, and other of its assorted axioms, seems startlingly courageous in its plea against wanton slaughter.

* * *

Back in the everyday grind of movies, the week offered also "Three Blind Mice" and "The Toy Wife."

The former is a cleverly contrived bit of entertainment featuring Loretta Young and Joel McCrea, with David Niven, Marjorie Weaver, Pauline Moore, Stuart Erwin and Binnie Barnes in the other principal roles. It's about three Kansas farm sisters who invade a California resort, masquerading as an heiress and attendants, to snare a rich nusband for at least the "heiress" among them. Binnie Barnes runs away with comedy honors, but the whole cast is ingratiating, and the total effect pleasant. William Seiter directed.

"The Toy Wife" is Luise Rainer in the old New Orleans which later was to foster Bette Davis' "Jezebel." Where Bette's Julie caused a lot of havoc by sheer cussedness, Rainer's Frou-Frou does it by being so frivolous and such a poor keeper of Melvyn Douglas' old colonial home that Sister Barbara O'Neill, a noble character, keeps it for him. Thus poor Frou-Frou flies to the arms of Robert Young, putting that capable young actor in line for the fate that has been his in too many recent films—death by shooting.

COURT WEIGHS ATTACK AGAINST PHONE REFUND

Tribunal to Decide Later on Plea to Set Aside Dismissal of Bell Case.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The state supreme court took under advisement today an application of the state utilities commission to dismiss a suit to upset the compromise settlement of the Ohio Bell Telephone rate case for $7,500,000 refund.

Dismissal of the action was asked by W. W. Metcalf, assistant attorney general, on the ground that the plaintiffs—a group of Cleveland labor union officials—had no right to prosecute such an action, that they had failed to show grounds for it and that the court was without jurisdiction to consider their suit.

Metcalf contended that the utilities commission's settlement order could be attacked only through an error proceeding by the parties involved. As the plaintiffs were not parties to the original action before the utilities commission, he argued they therefore could not now question the commission's order.

Lost 3 Times.

Metcalf and Attorney W. B. Cockley, representing the telephone company, pointed out this was the fourth attempt by Cleveland parties to get into the case and the court on the three previous occasions had ruled them out.

Attorney Victor S. Pollak, arguing on behalf of the plaintiffs, insisted his parties had no legal remedy to upset the commission's order other than by filing the instant action. He contended the order was arbitrary, not based upon evidence and that it flouted the mandates of the U. S. supreme court in reversing the state supreme court and the commission, and also flouted the Ohio supreme court's mandate in directing the commission to reconsider the case on the evidence.

Attorney Samuel Horwitz of Cleveland, also representing the plaintiffs, said the court not only should issue an order directing the commission to proceed to determine the case in accordance with evidence, but also should cite the commission members to show cause why they should not be held in contempt for refusing to obey the court's mandate.

Both sides were ordered to file briefs by next Friday.

Metcalf also prepared to oppose acceptance by the court of an amended petition filed yesterday by the plaintiffs.

ONE KILLED, ONE DROWNED

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Two young persons were victims of accidents here today. Imogene Ruth Groce, 5, was killed by an automobile when she ran from behind a parked car. Herman Marion, 21, Mt. Airy, N. C., was drowned while trying to swim across the Scioto river.

Would-Be Milwaukee Firemen Define 'Incendiary' as Hospital.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—(AP)—Six out of 808 Milwaukeeans who took an examination for city firemen's positions probably have a good idea why they flunked—if they've consulted a dictionary. The fire and police commission reported the six defined "incendiary" as a hospital for the insane.

THE OLD HOME TOWN —By Stanley

WORKMAN FLAYS DICTATORS AT RICHLAND BAR'S ANNIVERSARY

Atty. C. H. Workman continued his unbroken string of more than 40 consecutive annual talks before the Richland County Bar association today when he spoke at the organization's 50th anniversary luncheon meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

A practicing attorney in Mansfield for 44 years, Atty Workman has spoken before the bar association at least once a year during that period.

Speaking today on "The Dictator and Democracy," Atty Workman drew sharp contrasts between the iron-hand rule in Russia, Germany and Italy and the freedom for which the early American settlers fought and have retained.

"There is no room for dictatorship in American democracy," he said, "because every European dictator violates every clause of the Bill of Rights which helped to build the American nation."

He traced the development of dictator rule through several centuries in Europe and added that the hand of Fascism will reach next into Spain, leaving only England and France as the major republics left in Europe.

The meeting today was in charge of Atty. William F. Black, chairman of the bar association's committee on judicial administration and law reform.

Three founders of the bar association are still members of the organization. They are Attys. Lewis Brucker, Edwin Mansfield and H. B. Dirlam.

Atty. Dirlam was the first treasurer of the association and H. P Davis, who died a number of years ago, was the first president.

Three counties—Trumbull, Vinton and Jefferson—showed decreases of more than 40 per cent, he reported.

Receipts for the week ending June 14, the report said, were $717,572, a decrease of $220,000 from the same period last year.

Richland county's receipts were set at $8,850.

WON'T PROTEST

West to Abide by Ruling That Disqualified Him.

Ben West, Mt. Vernon, ruled out yesterday as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in the 17th district, indicated to county election board officials today that he will not protest the board's action in disqualifying him.

West, one of four originally in the Democratic race, came to Mansfield late yesterday from Columbus after learning that he had been disqualified.

In ruling out West's petition, the county election board acted on a complaint filed by Kenneth S. Beery, 9 Flint street, as a taxpayer. He contended that the petition contained a number of illegal signatures.

West is a brother of former Congressman Charles West, later contact man for President Roosevelt.

REMY SIDEWALK HEADACHE ENDS

WPA Crews Write Last Chapter in Puzzle; Walks Will Be Lowered, Relaid.

The last chapter in the Remy avenue sidewalk puzzle, where residents on the street have been having their ups and downs for the past eight months, was being written today.

Remy avenue is the street on which sidewalks were laid two years ago, anywhere from 18 inches to two feet above the street grade.

Today those sidewalks were being lowered and relaid by a crew of 35 WPA workmen. Residents on the street were happy that they will soon be able to drive into their driveways and not have to leave their cars parked at the curb. And then too, they will be able to step from the street to the sidewalk without undo stretching.

Tod Patton, city sidewalk inspector, said the crew was lowering the walks and setting them over 18 inches against the curb. The job is expected to be completed in another week. He explained that the walk was being moved over so the crew could complete the job by dressing up the lawns that would otherwise be left as the sidewalk was last fall.

Policeman Helps Trap Son Slain as 'Phantom' Thief

CHICAGO — (AP) — The "Dawn Phantom" gunman accused of 28 early morning holdups during the past two months was revealed in death today as a policeman's son.

Policeman Ernest L. Keen suspected, from victims' descriptions, the robber was his son, Harold, 23, an ex-convict. He went on extra duty in an effort to catch him.

Seven detectives trapped young Keen last night as he approached the home of a friend. They said he reached for his weapon, so they fired pistols and a machine gun. Eighteen bullets killed him.

Harold's wife, Angeline, 21, an expectant mother, was told of the shooting at the detective bureau where she had been detained.

"I expected it," she said.

Policeman Keen was telephoned.

"The work is done," he said, "as I knew it must be."

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

THEY told me I could find the men I wanted to see down at the "patch," so I followed a dim path down the hill along a winding creek and there at the edge of a little clearing, I came upon a picture I should like to frame and keep—only one never can.

Black, whispering treetops, against a sunset red. A man hoeing . . . a strong, tall young fellow whose hair was streaked by sun to saffron color. And, in the foreground, seated on a low stump, her dark head bent above the bundle in her arms, a young mother in some kind of a yellow dress, singing her baby to sleep.

The rows of corn and tomatoes and green onions, the tender, luscious green of the lettuce bed, the hills of melons and cucumbers, the stocky, verdant limas—everything was there. The young farmer's hoe went in and out of the dark loamy soil with a kind of tireless, gleaming rhythm, as though he loved the work. I knew he did.

When they saw me, they both came forward with welcome on their faces. I marveled aloud to them at the little fellow's strength of grip, as his five-weeks-old finger closed round mine. Their unaffected pleasure in their first child—the pride, the hope, the joy—I understood.

He has a pleasant heritage, this country child, of bright ambitious parents, nursed in the edge of the forest, reared among simple, natural realities of life. I mentioned something of this thought to his parents.

"He's a great little guy," admitted the bronzed young father. "He'll be goin' places we never dreamed of, I betcha. He's 'bout the littlest Future Farmer of America."

UNION PLEASED

Says Westinghouse Action Will Aid in Maintaining Harmony.

Gratification at the amicable settlement of the complaints filed against the Mansfield plant of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company was expressed today by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union, a CIO affiliate, through Edwin Beal, representative of the union.

Westinghouse announced yesterday the voluntary dissolution of its industrial relations committee, with the approval of the National Labor Relations board. The union had charged that the committee was company-dominated.

Beal said local 711, Westinghouse unit of the union, was pleased that the matter was "settled in an amicable and co-operative manner," and believed that dissolution of the committee would "assist in maintenance of harmonious relations between the company and organized labor."

Included in the company's action of yesterday, Beal said, was the reinstatement of Joseph Hawkins, vice president of local 711, as a Westinghouse employe.
